APPEALS FOR LABOR VOTES MADE BY U. S. CANDIDATES

Wage Earners Living Better Than Ever, Says Coolidge

RADICAL ATTACK

La Follette Hits At Both Republicans And Democrats

(Reuter's American Service)

Washington, Sept. 1.—All the presidential candidates today made appeals for the Labor Vote.

President Coolidge, receiving a delegation of Labor leaders at the White House, told them that American wage earners were living better than at any time in the country's history and enjoyed a greater buying power than in any country on earth. He reiterated that he was for a commonsense government under the American Constitution.

Senator Lafollette broadcast on arraignment of both the older parties for evils which he claims, have grown up under their administration.

Mr. Davis, addressing Trade Unionists at Wheeling, West Virginia, urged his hearers to help to bring the country to her rightful place in the councils of humanity.

POLO, RACING, YACHTING FOR PRINCE IN U.S.

Heir To British Throne Sees Epinard Beaten In Close Race

(Reuter's American Service)

New York, Sept. 1.—The Prince of Wales yesterday morning spent two hours exercising his polo ponies at the polo grounds near Westbury. One of his mounts was the pony Kitty, which Major Metcalfe will use in the Cup matches. After that the Prince took a long motor trip and a sail up Long Island Sound in a steam yacht.

Today His Royal Highness will participate in a scratch game of polo and will possibly visit Belmont Park to see Epinard meet some of the best American horses, including Zev and Ladkin, in a six furlong race, the first of a series of three international sweepstakes.

(Reuter's American Service)

Belmont Park, L. I., Sept. 1.—In the presence of the Prince of Wales and of 50,000 spectators, the first International race resulted in a win for Wise Counsellor in 1 min. 11 4-5 sec. Epinard was second and Ladkin third.

The lightning-fast Epinard was challenging the winner as it passed the winning-post only half a length ahead.

Good Speed Is Made By American Fliers

(Reuter's American Service)

New York, Sept. 1.—The flight of the American world-fliers from Ivigtut to Ice Tickle was performed in perfect weather. A northwest wind of from 20 to 40 miles an hour speeded up the machines which sometimes travelled at 125 miles an hour. A group of pressmen and a few fisherfolk on shore cheered the arrival of the fliers.

Waiting For The Word To Advance

Upper right, Chinese at Soochow packing onto the first train towards Nanking on Sunday morning. The ticket agents only sell enough to well fill a train, and then close the window making refugees wait for the next train, with the result that the Soochow station is a seething mass of humanity all day long.

Below, left Kiangsu army Red Cross division. The four uniformed men in the front row are doctors, and the five in back are nurses. The civilian is a member of the staff of the China Weekly Review.

LONDON PAPER URGES FRIENDLY HINT TO CHINA

Federation Of Provinces Is Seen As Logical Development

(Reuter's Service)

London, September 1.—The Westminister Gazette thinks that it is time that some friendly Power conveyed a hint to Peking that almost half of China's provinces desire autonomy, that the vast and unwieldy Republic cannot forever suppress the reasonable aspirations of the people and that a federation would be the logical development.

Certainly the Powers are placed in a difficulty, the journal goes on, not only on account of risks to their nationals and the threat to their trade but by being compelled to treat as a unity a collection of provinces which are willing to go to war about their claims.

The paper says that mere warnings, even supported by warships, are a barren way of dealing with the situation, which seems to be passing out of control.

ARMED ROBBERS SENT TO ARSENAL FOR EXECUTION

7 Men Get Death Sentences In French Mixed Court; 6 Charged Here

Seven Chinese were sent to the Arsenal for execution by the French Mixed Court yesterday as a result of their conviction on charges of highway robbery.

During the month of August eighteen men were arrested, members of gangs of armed robbers, six different cases being charged by the French Police. At the French Mixed Court yesterday all the men were tried. Seven, who were found to have taken the leading part in the robberies, were ordered sent to the Arsenal for execution, and one other sentenced to five years' imprisonment. The other ten men were not found to have taken any active part in the crimes of the robber gangs, and were ordered expelled as undesirable characters.

Six of the men have been handed over to the police of the International Settlement for trial here on charges of armed robbery in the Settlement.

THREE MURDERS HERE

One of the men turned over by the French Police, Sung Kwei-fong alias Dzau Ah-kung, it is said has confessed to three murders and six armed robberies in the Settlement. He appeared in the Mixed Court here yesterday, the immediate charge being the robbery of a place on Tatung Road and the killing of a man there.

The crime took place March 1 last, when a number of men entered the house of Wong Woo-sz and threated the householders with revolvers, obtaining some gold bangles and other property. Wong Ah-cha, who attempted resistance, was shot dead.

The man now on trial is charged with both the robbery and the killing. In Court yesterday he appeared before Mr. Jacobs, American Assessor, and Magistrate Loh. D.S.I. Quayle outlined the case, and said that the accused had confessed to three murders and six armed robberies in the Settlement. He asked the Court to remand the case for a week for further inquiries, and the Court so ordered.

And Now It May Be Told; The War Will Start Today

On the authority of no less a well-advised a person than the station master of the Shanghai-Hangchow Railway at Loonghwa, THE CHINA PRESS is in a position to announce that hostilities between the Kiangsu and Chekiang battalions, brigades, divisions and whatever else they have will be well under way by not later than 11:59 o'clock this morning.

But, as you value your life, or, rather his, don't tell a soul. For it's a real state secret.

Yesterday's deluge of rumors—what had gone before was a mere spring shower by comparison—had its effect on even so veteran a campaigner as Carl Crow, one-time newspaperman but now for several years past converted to the more sedate profession of advertising expert. Throughout the long preliminary stages of this "most momentous conflict in all China's recent history," Carl has been keeping his eyes closely glued to his office desk. But yesterday, when one telephone informant after another assured Carl severally and absolutely that: (1) the Kiangsu Navy was energetically engaged in bombarding the forts at Woosung; (2) airplanes were zooming through the leaden skies; (3) the rush of wounded might be expected at the Shanghai North Station at any hour; and, finally, that rations of gas masks were being parcelled out among those of us who still value our lives, Carl decided that the time might be apropos to go out and have a little "look-see" for himself.

BIG-HEARTEED CARL

Which he did. And, big-hearted as ever, he invited your humble correspondent to share with him the pleasing prospect of being shot, taken prisoner of war, or otherwise entertained.

Chinese Hotels Do Rushing Business As Refugees Flock In

Many Are Turned Away For Lack Of Room; Other Quarters Used

"Filled to capacity," "Absolutely no more room," "We are using our reception rooms for bed rooms" and "We wish we could put them up in our courtyard."

These were some of the answers our reporter got when he attempted to find out how crowded Shanghai was last night as a result of the influx of refugees from the "war zone" into the hotels.

All Chinese hotels, lodging houses, and rent rooms were packed with refugees like sardines yesterday. The hotels, either large or small, clean or dirty, did rushing business ever since the war rumors became rampant. When the Great Eastern Hotel, the Oriental Hotel, the Yih Ping Shang and other first class hotels were called last night, not a single room could be had at any of the places, while rooms at less known places were at a premium.

In some of the lodging houses the rooms originally occupied by the accountants, owners, even coolies were in high demand and could be obtained if fancy prices were offered. The small lodging houses in Frenchtown, which used to send out "callers" in the street to solicit customers no longer found this necessary and many who would turn their nose away from the "caller" were only too glad to get "standing room" in their quarters.

SCHOOLS CLOSE HERE AS RESULT OF WAR RUMORS

Many Postpone Opening But St. John's To Adhere To Schedule

All schools in Chinese territory in Shanghai have either postponed their opening for the fall term or have closed after having been open before the war scares became rampant.

The Communications University, formerly Nanyang College, was scheduled to open on the 10th, but yesterday notices were issued to the effect that the opening would be indefinitely postponed.

Nanyang Middle School of Ja Hui Chiao, which resumed classes last week, closed its doors on Sunday and its 100-odd students are now "guests" of the Communications University.

Fuh Tan College of Kiangwan, Tung Chi Engineering School in Woosung and the China National Institute have also announced the postponement of their opening pending the conclusion of the "war."

Many of the students who have been prevented from taking courses in schools in Chinese territory are seeking registration in the schools in the settlements.

The Ming Li Middle School in Nantao South Gate was to have resumed classes on Monday, but has notified its students that the opening of the school had been postponed for a week.

The Shen Chow Girls' School on North Szechuen Road, which was scheduled to open on August 28, announces that resumption of classes will take place on the 8th inst.

St. John's University, in Jessfield, according to Dr. F. Hawks Pott, its president, will not postpone its opening because of the imminence of war. The opening will be next week but students are expected to arrive from Friday on.

Yes, The Canteen Has Gone Dry!

One of our subscribers who happens to be the President of an important educational institution located in a city near Shanghai wrote a letter to the Editor of THE CHINA PRESS the other day making inquiry regarding the present status of the famous CHINA PRESS "canteen." Followers of the news in Shanghai doubtless will remember that the question of a canteen where "hard-liquor" was alleged to have been dispensed, recently figured in a famous case in one of the local courts, the litigants being a certain publishing company and one of its former employes.

The Editor of THE CHINA PRESS is glad to inform the subscriber whose letter is referred to above and any others interested that the old canteen has gone bone-dry—in fact it has been dry for several weeks. We now have in stock in the canteen a fine supply of distilled water, sarsaparilla, soda, lemonade and some very good coca-cola and any of our friends who are addicted to these Volstead beverages are cordially invited to pay the editorial sanctum a visit.

The attention of regular subscribers is directed to the announcement on page 2, which, it is hoped, will lead to greater efficiency in the Circulation Department and assure punctual delivery of The China Press.

S. N. R. AGAIN CUT; MAIL AND TELEGRAPH SERVICE HALTED AS WAR NEARS

Henli Bridge And Rails Between Huangtu And Quinsan Believed To Have Been Torn In Anticipation Of Early Encounter; More Troops Are Massed On Fighting Front By Both Belligerents

The sudden suspension of passenger traffic along the Shanghai-Nanking Railway, the cutting of telegraph wires at Nanziang and wild reports of skirmishing in Anting were yesterday's important events.

Following the movement of troops by both sides along the Shanghai-Nanking line, it was reported that the first shot was fired at 5 o'clock yesterday in the vicinity of Anting. This was however later denied officially. The Henli bridge was torn down by Kiangsu forces at 4 o'clock yesterday morning and the railway bridge between Anting and Luchiapang was wrecked by Chekiang forces at 7 o'clock, according to a special message received by The China Times.

Above Nanziang, telegraph and telephone communications were halted early in the morning. It was presumed that the Kiangsu army had taken possession of the lines.

Shortly after midnight Monday night 2,500 Kiangsu soldiers advanced on foot from Quinsan to Lu Chia Pang while about 2,000 Chekiang troops reached Kating by rail from Woosung. Besides maintaining the usual passenger service, the Shanghai Hangchow line yesterday transported many trainloads of soldiers to Sungkiang, Kashan and Kashing. Several trains conveying troops were also despatched along the Nanking line as far as Nanziang.

A mass of mail sacks has been accumulated at the North Station as a result of the suspension of traffic service. Railway authorities yesterday did not expect to resume the traffic within the next few days.

Foreign naval forces at Shanghai were strengthened yesterday by the arrival of six more American destroyers, which arrived in groups of three in the morning and afternoon, respectively, the Italian cruiser Libia and the French gunboat Jules Ferry. It is expected that more men-of-war will arrive today.

NANKING FLEET HOVERING NEAR KIANGYIN FORTS

Postponement Or Abandonment Of Attack By Water Is Indicated

Postponement or abandonment of any plans for an attack by water by the Kiangsu troops seemed indicated by reports received yesterday afternoon from observers who came down the river from Nanking.

Masses of soldiers in evidence in sampans and larger boats at Nanking a few days ago were noticeably absent and there was no concentration of boats apparent at any point down the river, such as might be the case if it were planned to transport a number of troops by water in an attempt to force a landing near the Woosung Forts and the skeleton garrison in them.

Half a dozen vessels of the Nanking fleet were at anchor under protection of the Kiangyin Forts. This fleet included four torpedo boats and several smaller vessels. No signs of unusual activity were noted aboard them.

River vessels are not allowed to pass the Kiangyin Forts between dusk and dawn, but are compelled to anchor either below or above the forts until daylight, according to the direction in which they are proceeding. With similar rules in effect at Woosung, the vessels on the Hankow run are finding themselves somewhat delayed en route, but are attempting to keep to schedule on the time for the round trip.

British Marines Given Quarters In Jessfield Park

Visitors to Jessfield Park these days now have an added attraction in addition to the flowers and well-kept lawns in the form of a contingent of British Marines from H. M. S. Dispatch which reached port a few days ago. There was insufficient room on the Dispatch for the Marines and since all of the hotels in the city are filled, the Municipal authorities finally decided that they might be quartered temporarily in Jessfield Park. Tents belonging to the Shanghai Volunteer Corps and temporary huts were being constructed yesterday for the housing of the contingent.

S. N. R. Again Cut; Mail And Telegraph Services Halted As War Nears

Markham Road Bridge on the Soochow Creek were commandeered by order of General Ho Feng-lin yesterday. Five hundred wheel barrows were also commandeered at Chapei and Nantao. The chief of the commissariat, Mr. Hsu Ping-jen, announced that only those willing to serve were sequestrated and regular rent will be paid to the owners. General Ho also purchased 3,000 piculs of army rice yesterday.

An investigation conducted personally by the chairman of the Rice Guild, Fan Wu-seng, showed that over 300 rice boats are now anchored in the Soochow Creek. Of these only 76 are loaded with the cereal, totalling 6,120 piculs. The rest were empty boats, whose owners dare not to return home for fear that they might be commandeered.

Two "cheap rice depots" were established by local Cantonese yesterday. One was located at the Cantonese Merchants' Association on Range Road and the other, at the Yuen Tsi Benevolent Institute on North Szechuen Road. The price was fixed at $10 per picul, about $7 below the market price. Each customer was allowed to purchase only half a picul or less.

Beginning today the Chapei Benevolent Association will also inaugurate a similar depot. While the price is the same as the Cantonese depots, the quantity is limited to one tenth of a picul only.

Information received by certain French authorities here indicates that fighting would commence either last night or this morning.

Trouble Brewing In Szechuen, Too

(Eastern News Agency)

Hankow, Sept. 1.—Advises from Chungking report that there are signs of another internal trouble arising in Szechuen, for General Teng Hsi-hou and General Ho Kuang-lieh, Commander of the 5th Division, are now at swords' points with each other. General Yang Sen has wired to General Hsiao Yai-nan, Tuchun of Hupeh, asking for the supply of arms and ammunition.

Money Market In Hankow Suffers

(Eastern News Agency)

Hankow, Sept. 1.—Notwithstanding repeated reports that fighting between the Kiangsu and Chekiang troops is imminent both Marshal Wu Pei-fu and General Hsiao Yao-nan are apparently maintaining an indifferent attitude. The money market here has been considerably affected by the depression of economic circles in Shanghai, and in consequence merchants in Wuhan are devising some relief measures.

Fight Inevitable Says Tang Shao-yi

(Eastern News Agency)

Shanghai, Sept. 2.—Interviewed this morning by a representative of the Eastern News Agency, Mr. Tang Shao-yi, commenting on the situation, stated in part:

"Judging from the course of events and from activities being carried by the Chekiang and Kiangsu troops, fighting between these contending troops appears to be absolutely inevitable. Even if war were checked at the present juncture, it is more than likely that hostilities will be opened between the military leaders of the two provinces in the near future.

"As I am not a military man, I cannot say which side will come out victorious if fighting should actually take place. Indeed, I am entirely ignorant of the real strength or power of either side, though according to press reports, troops of the two provinces are numerically different.

"It is true that I have been requested by Chinese merchants' bodies and other public organisations as regards means to prevent hostilities from being opened between the opposing troops, but I say that it is now too late to start such a movement in earnest. People should long ago have opposed such movements with sincerity and enthusiasm.

"Both General Chi of Kiangsu and General Lu of Chekiang have already gone too far to change their minds. It will be remembered that the bone of contention is the control of Shanghai, which geographically belongs to Kiangsu but is in reality under the control of General Lu of Chekiang. It is clear, therefore, that so long as the bone of contention remains unsettled by some pacific means, it should be settled by force of arms. The Peking Government, which has no authority at all, representing only a small number of Chinese people, can do nothing to maintain peace and order in the country, much less to induce the chieftains of Kiangsu and Chekiang to come to terms with each other. Furthermore, General Lu does not recognise President Tsao Kun, and consequently it is natural that General Lu rejects any proposition for compromise offered by the Peking Government, with Tsao Kun as its head.

"The only thing I am anxious about is that in case hostilities should be opened between the Chekiang and Kiangsu troops near the Settlements of Shanghai, thereby causing a menace to the lives and properties of foreigners, there will be a setback to the contention on the part of Chinese for the abolition of extraterritoriality though it may be of a temporary nature.

"Nevertheless, I feel sure that even in that case, lives and properties will be safe, as the belligerent troops will not dare to do any harm to the foreign Settlements here. It is not improbable that the present clash between Kiangsu and Chekiang will be followed by series of more serious disturbances in various parts of the country. The source of these internal troubles lies in the lack of a stable, good government, really representing the will of the people."

Chronicles From The Courts

By "Chameleon"

All the world's a stage, and Chapoo Road last night presented a play with all the elements of great drama. Love and passion, trusting manhood and treacherous womankind, the lure of glittering gold, the unsheathing of murderous weapons, the babel of human voices in a fury of rage and hate, all the elemental passions were there.

But enough of the prologue. The drama started with Mary. Mary is a vamp. Of her previous record history telleth not, but yesterday morning, in the wee small hours when sailormen seek rest and quiet and feminine tenderness, Mary vamped a couple of them on Chapoo Road and steered them to her humble domicile nearby, finally proferring them, it is said, her hospitality for the night. The two smitten ones accepted with joy and gratitude, and one of them, in her house, gave her a gold ring as a sign of his love and devotion. The exact nature of the ring is not apparent, and whether it was a wedding ring or merely an engagement ring does not appear in the story. Mary, however, got the ring.

As the police report prosaically but euphemistically puts it, Mary offered them accommodation, but after she got the ring she refused them the accommodation. Not only that, but upon their insistence on being accommodated Mary dug out a pistol and pointed it at them, and told them to beat it. They did so, but only as far as the Police Station, from where P.C.C. Trodd promptly went over to the woman's house. He finally got in, and made a search of the place, which produced a deadly-looking weapon in the nature of a water pistol.

This should by all the laws of love and war, be the end of the drama, but Mary followed the constable to the station and began to express her feelings in discordant and unseemly language on the street in front of the station. She was finally taken into the station by the minions of the law, and charged at the Mixed Court later in the day for disorderly conduct. She appeared before Assessor Bucknell and Magistrate Li, and was cautioned.

THE PATH OF GLORY

Wong Ah-pau wanted to be a policeman. Ever since his youngest years he had had a great ambition to be one of the blue-coated guardians of the law before whomrichshamen and evil-doers quail in fear and trembling, who represent the omnipotence of Powers-That-Must-Be. Obeyed, that stand haughtily above hawkers and handcart men and ordinary householders and even shopkeepers, and hold in the hollow of their hands all the visible power and destiny of the world.

Wong grew up, and his lofty ambition did not die, but grew with his years. Finally, reaching years of maturity, he decided to organise a police force of his own, with himself as policeman, clerk, judge and lord high executioner. At last, setting aside enough from his meager earnings to get a uniform and badge, he appeared proudly among the boatmen on Soochow Creek in all the regalia of power. The force, of course, had to eat and otherwise maintain itself, and Wong obtained contributions from the boatmen towards his household expenses, and lived in glory day after day until the fatal morning when after a shivery night on a boat Wong realised that the summer heat was passing, and he had better make some additions to his wardrobe. Unfortunately, Wong picked out the boat of Yung Ah-zien as the one from which his clothing was to be requisitioned, and helped himself to a pair of cotton pants and a cotton jacket which Yung, being in bed at the time, was not wearing. Yung, however, objected forcibly and vehemently to Wong's appropriation of his clothing, and called a minion of the S. M. P., who took Wong to the West Hongkew Police Station.

How are the mighty fallen! The tragic end to all Wong's greatness had come. He was jailed, his insignia of power—which was the major portion of his wardrobe—was seized, and he was charged at the Mixed Court yesterday with larceny and representing himself as a policemen. His last burst of pride came when Inspector McKinney testified that Wong "was functioning as a policeman on the boats on Soochow Creek, extorting money and stealing clothing." Wong was not sentenced, his case being remanded, but what happens in the future is of little moment. His day of glory is over, gone, finished, gefiooey.

AN ODD AFFAIR

Matching odd pairs of shoes is a tortuous and lengthly occupation, but there is one man in Shanghai who is willing to devote his time and energy, and all the brilliance of his not inconsiderable talents, to the task. He went into a shoe shop on North Szechuen Road last Monday, and after looking over various footgear told the shopkeeper he didn't want these common slippers in which both right and left were of precisely the same pattern, but something unique, something original, one slipper of one pattern and one of another. He had found exactly the kind he wanted, and asked if he might take them.

As the shopkeeper pondered, a vision came to him. Three days before he had missed a couple of slippers. Not a pair of slippers, just a couple of slippers of different patterns. Were these becoming so popular? Or. . . .

Quietly strolling to the door, deep in meditation, the shopkeeper noted a Chinese constable nearby and whooped for help. The minion of the law was in the shop at once, and the customer was taken in charge. Searched, he revealed the stolen slippers, hidden under his tunic. He appeared in the Mixed Court yesterday, where his diligence and zeal were rewarded by a sentence of two weeks' imprisonment.

L'ENFANT PRODIGUE

Wong Lee-sung is not exactly a dutiful son. In fact, some would say he is a holy terror. He appears most unfortunately to be sadly lacking in, if not totally devoid of, the virtue of filial piety.

Not that it might not be worse, of course. All Wong is accused of so far is various attempts to extort money from papa Wong. The first count is that he threatened to tear papa's can off if he wouldn't come through with enough spending money for young Wongs requirements. (The old gentleman's can is still in place, which leads to the assumption that Wong got his money.) Shortly afterward, another dispute on the same subject in the same way arising, Wong proceeded to smash a few windows and break up things generally, and a few days later, urgent requests for money being declined, to smash furniture and personal property. A little later the sweet child obtained from the foreman in charge of papa Wong's ricsha contracting shop about $27 in small money, threatening to take the foreman's job himself if he declined to fork over the desired coin.

Old man Wong finally got a bit tired of the perpetual chase with himself as the quarry, and brought a few charges against his wayward son, but before the case came to Court he apparently decided that discretion was the better part of valor, and asked to have the charges withdrawn. When the case came up before Assessor Jacobs and Magistrate Soh yesterday the charge was withdrawn accordingly.

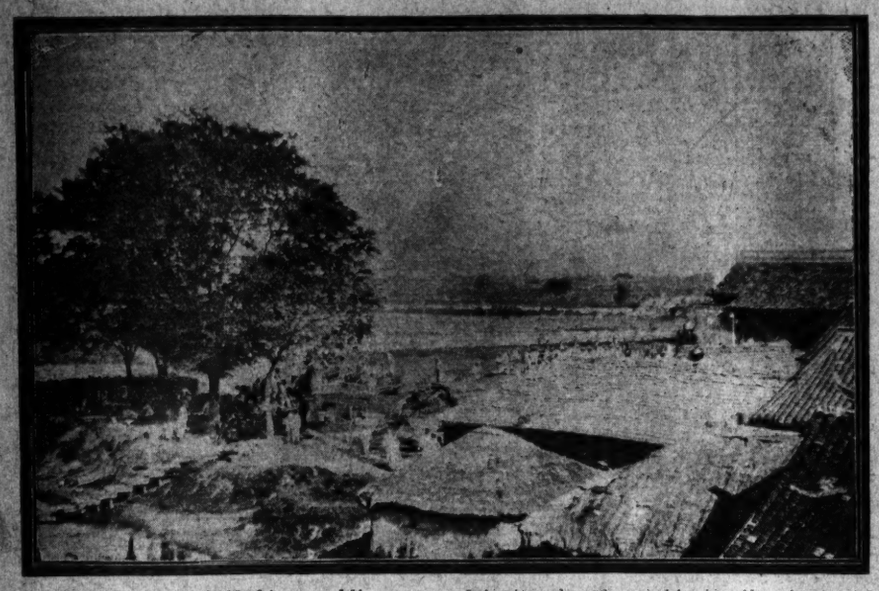
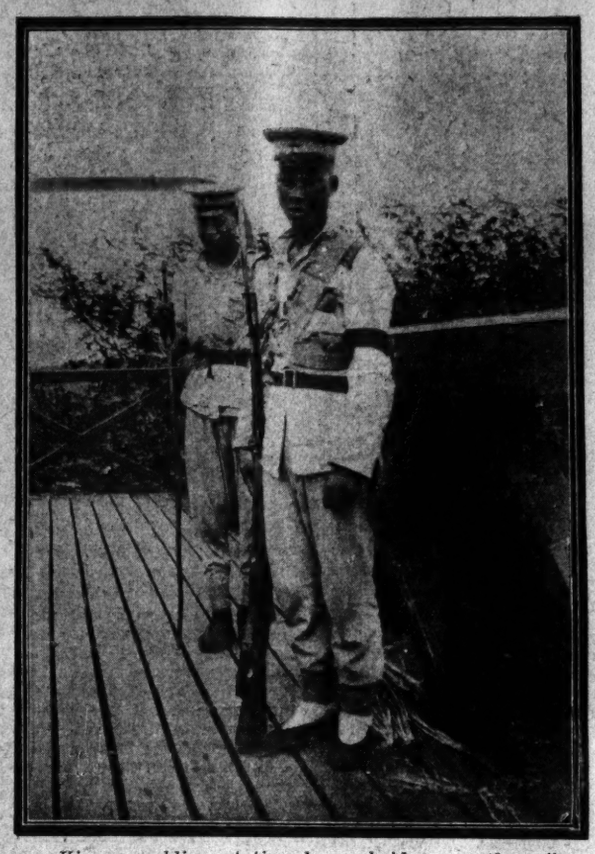
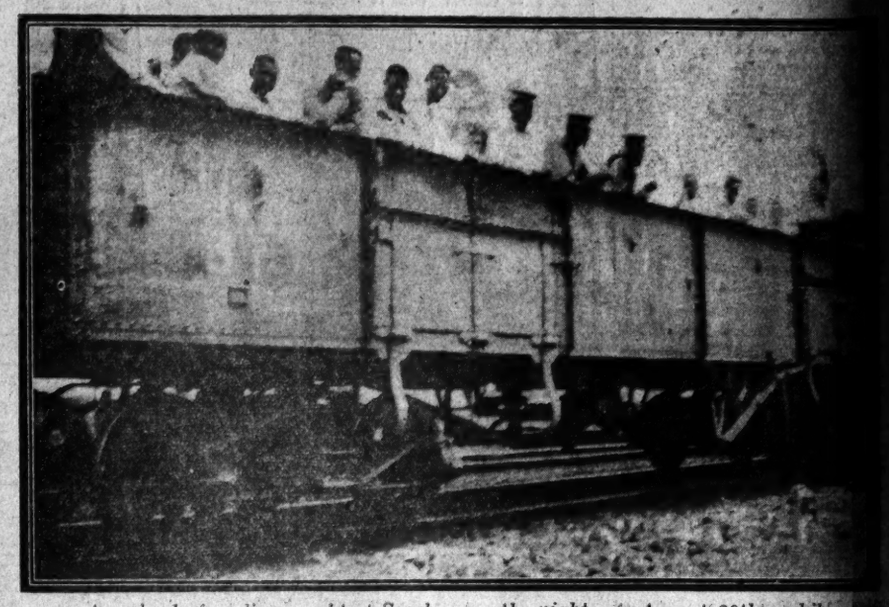
With The Chekiang And Kiangsu Troops As Their Lines Are Drawn For Battl



A company of Chekiang soldiers camped in temple at right in the town of Huang-tu. Supper is being prepared under the trees at the left

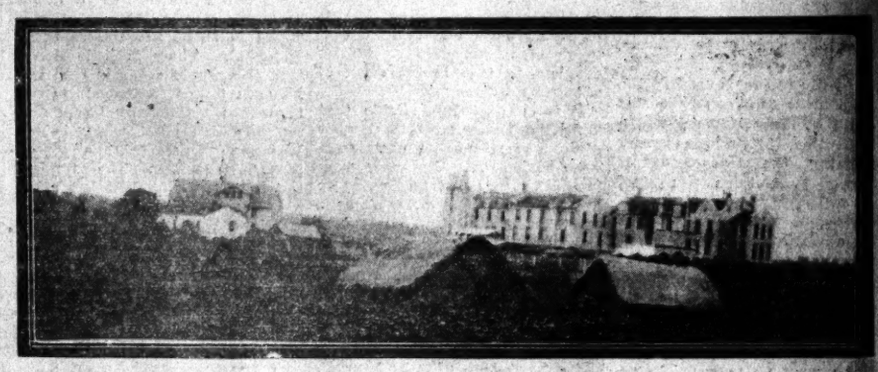


Kiangsu soldiers stationed on a bridge over the railway at Quinsan. The uniforms worn by the Kiangsu and Chekiang forces are exactly the same color (blue-gray), the only distinction besides the difference in the caps, being a red arm band which is fastened on the Kiangsu uniforms and which has a Chinese inscription reading: "Kiangsu Soldier—Remember the Six Instructions." No one can give any information as to what the Six Instructions are.



A carload of coolies caught at Soochow on the night of August 29th, while they were being taken down to Quinsan to work for the Kiangsu army.

Canal at Soochow jammed with junks which have brought soldiers down from Changchow. Everything afloat the along canal was grabbed by the Chekiang army more than a week ago. Many junk owners sank their craft in order to avoid seizure. The Asiatic Petroleum launch was taken at Soochow, but returned through intervention of the Commissioner for Foreign Affairs.



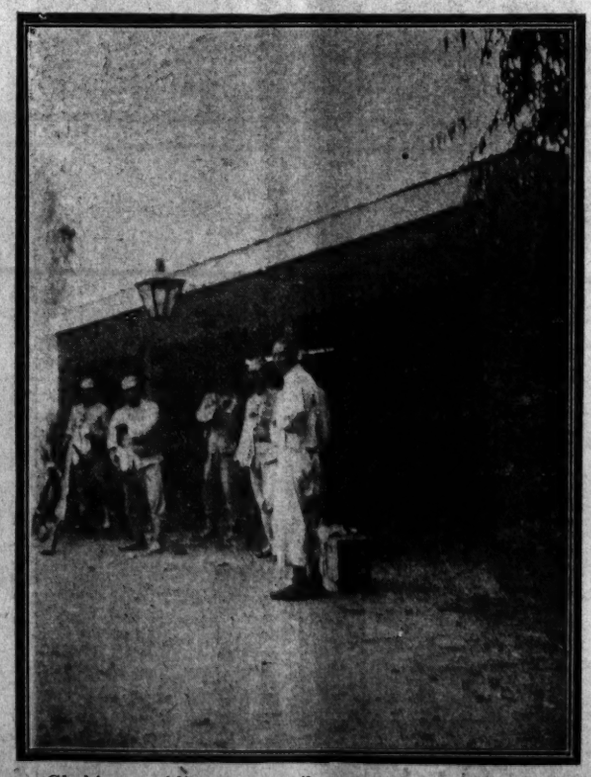
Wilkins hospital at Soochow, to which wounded will be transferred from the front after receiving first aid.

Chekiang soldiers at a station a few miles from Shanghai. The third soldier from the right can be seen leveling his rifle at the photographer, and the other soldier near the center is reaching for a rock which he later hurled. The caps on the Chekiang soldiers give them the appearance of a visiting baseball team.

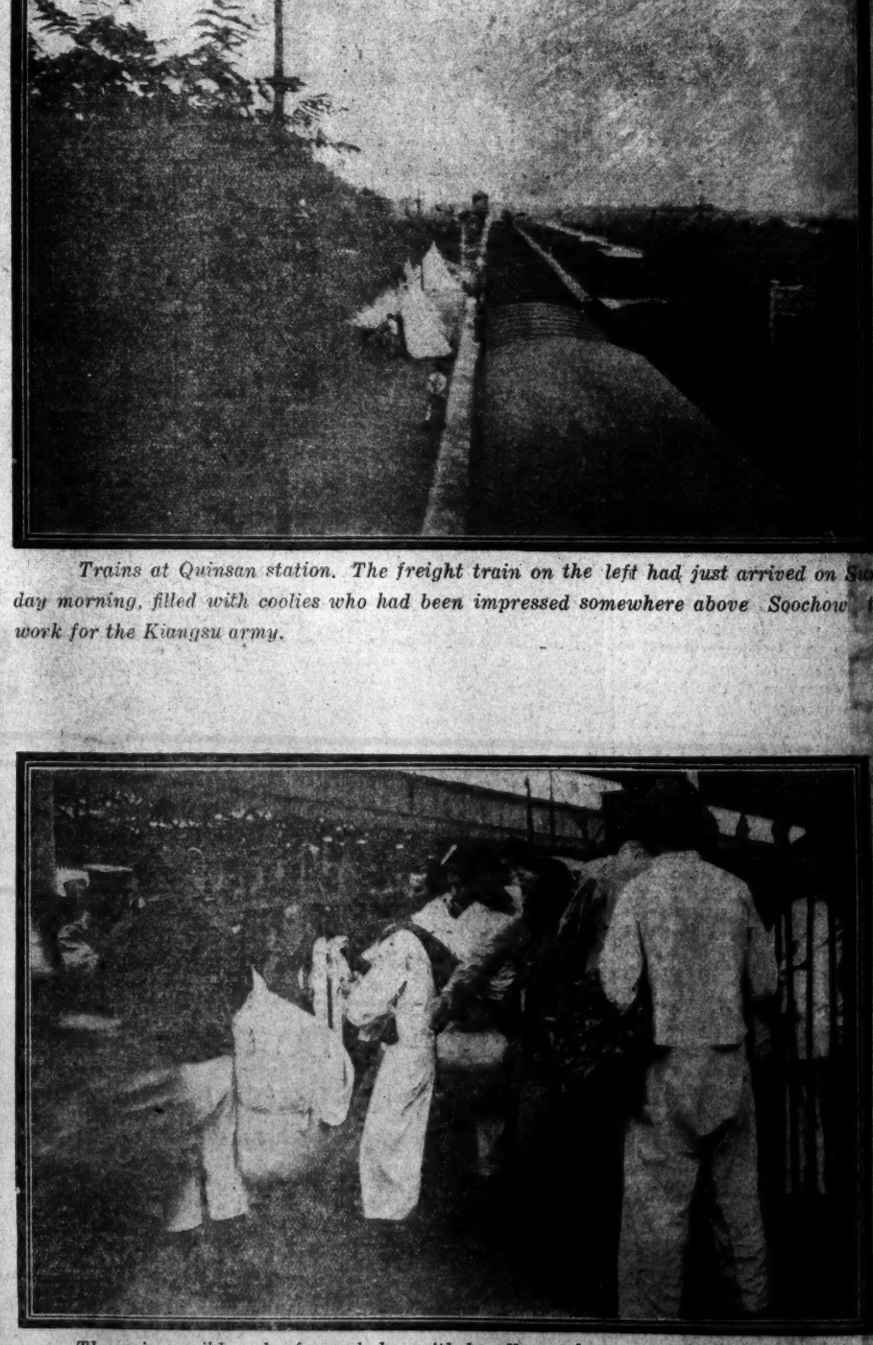
Impressed coolies dumped out at Quinsan station by Kiangsu troops. They came down by train on Sunday morning.

Trains at Quinsan station. The freight train on the left had just arrived on Sunday morning, filled with coolies who had been impressed somewhere above Soochow to work for the Kiangsu army.

Mob trying to jam onto an already overcrowded train at Quinsan. The panic of the Chinese civilian populace is to be noted everywhere, people in Soochow moving to Nanking and people in Nanking rushing to Soochow. The chief idea seems to be move, maskee where.



Chekiang soldiers at a railway station near Shanghai.



There is a wild rush of men laden with bundles and women with babes at their breasts when the gates are thrown open at the various railroad stations.

Heavy Fighting In Morocco Reported

(Reuter's Service)

Madrid, Sept. 2.—The seriousness of the position in Morocco is emphasised by an official communique describing heavy fighting consequent on persistent and violent attacks on Spanish communications in the western zone.

The communique says that strong forces must be employed and consequently eight battalions are being despatched immediately from Spain: "the situation calls for great coolness and firmness, and the Directory feels compelled more than ever to exercise all its authority both in Spain and in Morocco."

Gibraltar, Sept. 2.—Gunfire from Morocco is audible in Tangier and Gibraltar. Tribesmen in the vicinity of the Tangier zone are joining in.

Fugitive Troops Will Be Disarmed By Settlement

While police departments of both the foreign and Chinese cities of Shanghai are burdened by the problems resulting from the addition of thousands of refugees to the usual population, foreign officials have already realised that they may have a far greater problem to face in the event of a battle near Shanghai.

It is considered inevitable that if fighting begins a certain number of soldiers will either stray from their regiments and wander back to the International Settlement or French Concession or else deliberately slip away and attempt to take refuge with foreign protection from the dangers of life in the field.

Worse than the problem of such cases, which the police could probably handle without assistance, would be that of a whole army or section an army defeated in battle and retreating to Shanghai. There is little doubt that this would occur in case the Kiangsu troops managed to cut through the Chekiang forces and separate the right wing before Woosung from the front and center toward Hangchow. The foreign settlements would doubtless seem a happy haven to the defeated warriors.

Inclination might say, "Keep them out," but unfortunately international law rules otherwise. The settlements in such case would be in the position of Switzerland or Holland in the World War, compelled to shelter the fugitives and protect them. The method of carrying out such a necessity would be simple but far from easy.

The boundary lines of the settlements would have to be guarded by patrols to receive the fleeing soldiers. Upon these patrols would devolve the task of disarming the defeated soldiers before allowing them to go far inside the settlements. Upon these patrols would likewise rest responsibility of protecting the fugitives from any pursuers, once the former crossed the boundary line.

Should such conditions arise they will probably be considered an emergency of sufficient gravity for reenforcement of the police by contingents from the foreign men-of-war, the Shanghai and French volunteers or both bodies. It might be that the re-enforcing groups would not be needed for active patrol work but merely as an additional show of strength behind the police.

Although the French Concession and the International Settlement are under different control, an understanding exists between the men responsible for their government and close co-operation will exist in any emergency. It is considered certain that ample warning will be had of any battle action or other change in present conditions which might bring about an emergency, so that preparedness will be easy and unhurried.

ASSASSIN FAILS IN MAD ATTACK ON GEN. FUKUDA

Socialist Attempts To Kill Commander As Revenge Measure

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, Sept. 1.—General Fukuda was unsuccessfully attacked this evening by a Socialist who was arrested on the spot. General Fukuda was the commander of the Tokio Garrison at the time of the arrest and murder of the Socialist, Osugi Sakaye, in September last and his assailant is declared to be a follower of Osugi.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, September 2.—General Fukuda's assailant, Kyutaro Wada, declared that he intended to kill the General in revenge for the death of Osugi Sakaye, for which, he said, General Fukuda was to blame.

Kyutaro Wada's revolver contained one blank and five ball cartridges. Only the blank cartridge was fired, the wadding striking General Fukuda in the left shoulder blade, causing a severe burn. The assailant was seized before he could fire again. General Fukuda required medical treatment.

Seven other socialists have been arrested.

Postoffice Finds Many New Patrons Among The Troops

The old saying that it's an ill wind that blows no good, or something like that, has a practical application in the case of the parcels post department of the Chinese Government Post Office. Foreign travelers arriving yesterday from towns in the war zone which are now occupied by soldiers, report that the soldiers belonging to the various military units have discovered the efficiency of the Post Office in sending materials back to their families in various parts of the country. Practically all of the soldiers now involved in the present fight have recently been paid so they are looking upon the present adventure as a sort of shopping expedition. In some cases they are reported not to be spending much time or wasting any conversation with shop-keepers. They go into the shops, select what they desire, throw a few coppers on the counter and walk out. Then they wrap the parcels, write addresses on them and post them immediately to the "folks at home." The recent report of the Chinese Post Office contained this statement in the introduction:

"The heavy movements of troops from their bases to other parts of the country, too, have stimulated the money order business. Hence the greatest increases during 1923 were in parcel and money order transactions."

China Is Given Place At Assembly Of League

Tang Tsai-jon Is Elected One Of Six Vice-Presidents As Important Meeting Opens At Geneva

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, Sept. 2.—There is good ground for believing that China will be given one of the Vice-Presidentships of the present Assembly of the League of Nations, and it is also thought likely that her request for the reduction of her contribution to the expenses of the League from 6s to 35 units will be granted probably with object of neutralising the clamor of that section of Chinese Parliamentary opposition in favor of China's withdrawal from the League and strengthening the position of Dr Wellington Koo.

Later. The Assembly today elected the six Vice-President as follow:—

M. Bourgeois (France)
Lord Parmoor (Great Britain)
Signor Salandra (Italy)
Senor Urrutia (Colombia)
M. Skrzynski (Poland)
Mr. Tang Tsai-jon (China).

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 2.—Mr. MacDonald departed today for Genva. A huge crowd assembled at Victoria Station. The Premier conversed with pressmen on the platform said that he felt very keenly the tremendous importance of the League of Nations. He was not going to Geneva to make speeches, although he would have something to say. He was trying, he concluded, by his presence in Geneva to demonstrate his confidence in the power of the League to do good work, and he was very anxious that every nation should send the strongest delegation there possible.

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, Sept. 1.—The fifth assembly of the League of Nations opened here today. The public galleries were packed.

M. Hymans, the Acting President, received an ovation. In a speech he described the progress of the League and affirmed that the League was indispensable to the life of nations.

M Hymans lauded the settlement of the reparations question by the London Conference as ushering in a period of peace, tranquility and progress, but referring to the disarmament question he said that the very serious problem of security remained. Europe was not able to live in a state of insecurity and peace must be built on firm legal and political foundations. All eyes were turned to the League in the hope that it would find a solution. The presence of M. Herriot and Mr. Ramsay MacDonald testified to the growing importance of the League.

M. Motta (Switzerland), amid prolonged applause, was elected President of the Assembly by 45 out of 47 States voting.

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, September 1.—M. Herriot is expected to arrive tomorrow in Geneva. During his absence the minister for the Colonies, M. Daladier, will be in charge of the Ministry for Foreign Affairs.

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, Sept. 1.—The French delegates to the Council of the League of Nations, MM. Bourgeois Briand, Boncourt, Jouvenel and Maurice Sarraut, arrived today.

BY UNITED PRESS

Mexico City, Sept. 2.—The Government of Mexico, it was indicated today, intends to apply to the League of Nations for membership within a few weeks.

SOVIET ENVOY AGAIN RETURNS AMERICAN NOTE

Karakhan Still Holds That It Was Neither Proper Nor Courteous

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Sept. 2.—The communication embodying the American reservation in connection with the handing over of the Russian Legation to the Soviet plenipotentiary has now changed hands four times. It was originally sent to M. Karakhan by Mr. Yoshizawa, the Japanese Minister on August 18. The document was returned by M. Karakhan to Mr. Yoshizawa the following day, and on the August 29 Mr. Yoshizawa sent it back to M. Karakhan with a covering note, in which he pointed out he was merely carrying out his duty as senior representative of the Protocol Powers.

It transpires that on August 30 M. Karakhan again returned the communication to Mr. Yoshizawa, accompanied by a note stating that he, M. Karakhan, had never any doubt as to Mr. Yoshizawa's position in the matter, but he was unable to accept the explanation of the Japanese Minister that the document could not be construed as containing any insinuation against the Soviet.

M. Kaakhan declares he still holds the view that the American statement is neither proper nor courteous, and expresses the hope that the American Government will not make another attemnt to present a communication which he cannot accept, and which is not supported by International law and practice.

RAIL GUARD IS REINFORCED AS LINE IS BROKEN

Strict Examination Is Made By Groups Of Police And Soldiery

The guard at the Shanghai North railway station was heavily re-enforced yesterday following the cutting of the Shanghai-Nanking railway and telegraph and telephone lines and no one allowed admission to the station until after examination by combined police and soldier groups.

Passengers for stations on the Hangchow line were allowed to enter the station and one group was admitted to go on a special which went as far as Nanziang on the Nanking line. The special left crowded mostly with men returning to their homes for various reasons and returned about noon jammed with a crowd of men, women and children.

Definite information could not be obtained as to the size of the break in the railroad line, whether one rail missing, a dozen displaced or a bridge out or whether there were several breaks with a combination of destroyed bridges and displaced rails, but it was declared that the break nearest Shanghai was at Hwangtu, a small town a short distance beyond Nanziang.

Hwangtu is the station at which the Chekiang forces were reported by one of the last arrivals in Shanghai over the Nanking line to be concentrating their forces. Beyond Hwangtu he reported only skirmishers, while this side of the town were strong supports for the front line. It is possible that the line was deliberately broken to prevent a surprise attack or the advance of the armored train containing contingents of the Kiangsu army.

After the departure of the last train of the day on the Hangchow line at 7 o'clock yesterday evening, the iron gates at the main door of the station were closed and tied shut by the guards who had been barring entrance to all except those who seemed actually going on the train. A side gate, off the station platform, was kept open to serve as exit when the train due in at 11 o'clock from Hangchow should arrive and for the use of railroad employes and the guards. Earlier trains on the Hangchow line arrived more nearly on time yesterday than for several days preceding.

Numbers of railroad employes whose work has part in operation of the Nanking line were ready at the station through their usual working hours in case traffic should be resumed. The air of leisure which they wore through the day while the soldiers alertly watched the passengers from posts at every doorway, office and gate fell like a cloak upon the men in gray as night fell and the station was cleared of everyone but the few person there on definite railroad or military business.

Then the only indication of energy on the part of the soldiers was in the "rest" mud on several heaps of entrenching tools lying on trucks ordinarily used to carry heavy baggage along the platforms.

OBREGON RAPS BRITISH POLICY IN 'SWAN SONG'

Retiring President Of Mexico Makes Sharp Attack On England

(Reuter's American Service)

Mexico City, Sept. 2.—In his final address to Congress as President of Mexico before handing over the Government to the new President, General Obregon vigorously attacked the policy of Great Britain in connection with the suspension of diplomatic relations and the expulsion of Mr. Cummins. He declared that the latter did not possess a diplomatic or official character, but the administration was given him for personal considerations despite the fact that he mixed in political affairs, from which foreigners were absolutely barred.

Mr. Cummins's attitude towards the Mexican Government from the beginning of 1922 was one of "offensive dignity". General Obregon alleged that Mr. Cummins sent exaggerated reports of the Mexican revolt to London and encourage British subjects in Mexico to make "impertient representations", and asserted that he was preparing a scandalous incident in order to halt Sir Thomas Hohler's voyage to Mexico. The attempted expulsion of Mr. Cummins had not been due to his representations on behalf of British subjects in Mexico, but to his discourteous attitude towards the Mexican Government.

BUTCHERS FEAR MEAT SUPPLY WOULD BE CUT

Entire Stock May Be Exhausted Within Ten Deys, Says Meeting

The Butchers' Association held a meeting last night and issued a circular on the meat supply situation in Shanghai. According to the message, Shanghai under normal conditions drew its supply from Nanking, Taiyang, Changchow, Yangchow and cities in Chekiang, Anhui and Shantung. Due the war scares and the commandeering of freight cars along the railways, the supply had been curtailed and price had been increased.

The circular predicted that unless war was called off or concluded within ten days, no beaf would be offered on the market as by that time all the cattle in Pootung, Nanwei and Chuansha would have been slaughtered to meet the demand. In that case, the butchers would be compelled to secure their supply elsewhere at greater cost, which would necessitate an increase in the price in Shanghai.

FLOOD RELIEF DRIVE IS NOW ON IN EARNEST

Parade At Peking To Enlist Support For Campaign To Aid Sufferers

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, Aug. 29.—On Sunday afternoon at three o'clock a procession of automobiles with banners, and led by a band, will leave the headquarters of the Chinese National Red Cross at 22 Kan Mien Hutung an parade through the principal streets of the city. The banners will tell about the National Flood Relief Drive, organised under the joint auspices of the China International Famine Relief Commission and the Chinese National Red Cross, which is to have its official opening on Monday, September 1st.

In this way the drive will be brought to the attention of many a Chinese in the street for it is hoped the Chinese will give largely in this distinctly national attempt to raise $2,000,000 for the flood sufferers. Banners bearing appeals to give are to be hung across the pailous throughout the city.

Various cities have been assigned quotas out of the $2,000,000. According to word just received here, Hankow has already made a start toward her share. The Benevolent Association, a Chinese organisation, the Chinese Chamber of Commerce and the Hupeh Committee of the China International Famine Relief Commission have organised a joint committee to undertake the work of raising funds.

Contributions are already beginning to come in to the China International Famine Relief Commission and the Chinese National Red Cross for the benefit of the millions left homeless and without food by the summer floods. The largest single gift to date is $100,000 Gold contributed by the American Red Cross to the former organisation, but that has not quite the same significance as some of the smaller gifts received since.

The little children of six and under of the East Cliff Sunday School at Peitaiho collected five dollars among themselves and forwarded it through one of their teachers to the Commission.

The Chinese merchants in Kobe have sent one thousand Yen to the China International Famine Relief Commission and the Chinese in New York have forwarded through the Chinese Consul-General in New York $3,000 to the Red Cross.

Here in Peking, the Union of Social Welfare Groups, an organisation under the auspices of the Students Y.M.C.A. and composed of Chinese students, have decided to distribute 3,000 banks to wealthy homes and shops with the request that they be filled as full as possible within the next two months. They will then be emptied and the entire contents turned over to the Famine Relief Commission. It is hoped in this way to raise a really substantial sum.

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, Aug. 28.—The National Flood Relief Drive with an objective of two milion dollars for the flood sufferers of China is to be opened officially on Monday, September 1st. This drive is a joint enterprise of the China International Famine Relief Commission to which four-fifths of the proceeds are to go, and of the Chinese National Red Cross. President Tsao Kun has consented to act as Honorary Chairman. The treasurers are to be the treasurers of the China International Famine Relief Commission, Mr. J. E. Baker and Admiral Tsai Ting Kan.

The opening here in Peking will be marked by a large public meeting at the Headquarters of the Red Cross, 22 Kan Mien Hutung, to which the members of the Cabinet, all the foreign ministers and many of the capital's most prominent men have been invited. President Tsao Kun is unable to attend himself, but will send a special representative.

Peking's quota to be raised during the drive has been fixed at $500,000, which will be raised by ten teams, five foreign and five Chinese. Other cities have been given quotas as follows:

Shanghai	$400,000.
Hankow	$200,000.
Kaifang	$100,000.
Changsha	$ 50,000.
Tientsin	$300,000.
Tsinanfu	$100,000.
Taiyuanfu	$100,000.
Sianfu	$100,000.

That the situation to be met is even more serious than that of the Great Famine Year is becoming more and more apparent. In most districts the excessive rains were preceded by severe drought which ruined the early summer corps. The water still lying over the country will prevent the planting of any fall crops so that for a year and a half great sections of the richest agricultural regions of China will be without crops of any kind.

The two organisations participating in the drive have divided the relief work between them so that there will be no wasteful duplication of effort. The Red Cross will handle the more immediate euergency relief and distribute grain and money to supplement the measures taken by the local officials in the flooded areas. The China International Famine Relief Commission, on the other hand, will devote itself entirely to relief measures of a more permanent character, such as the building of dykes and deepening of river channels and other flood and famine prevention measures So far as possible the money expended on these enterprises will be loaned, repayable to the Commission when local conditions permit. In this way, the Commission hopes to add to its permanent revolving fund.

It will be possible to ear mark funds contributed to the Drive for either organisation.

What The Chinese Papers Are Saying

Peking, September 1.—A semi-official newspaper reports that instead of waiting to be encircled, Chekiang will strike the first blow. Yang Hua-chao is going to Yihsin; and Chwang Tso-ping, to Kwangteh. Free access will be given to foreign correspondents in Quinsan, Liuho and Pingwan. Since communication facilities on the Western shore of the Taiho are unavailable, no definite news has been received about the skirmishes there.

Loyang and Nanking are quite harmonious in the political situation. Consultations were held between representatives before the warlike preparations. The Central Government, realising the imminence of the strike is taking every precaution to strengthen the situation and shorten the period of warfare. The government is not going too stop after a little struggle and leave the question hanging fire as before. While the public resents the ravages of war, they should know that war is the mother of peace, says the reports. —Shun Pao.

Peking, September 1.—At a conference held at the Presidential Palace, it was decided that since the Central Government was still nominally in favor of peace, it was self-contradictory to issue a Presidential Mandate ordering a general attack against the force of Chwang Tso-ping and Yang Hua-chao.—Shun Pao.

Peking, September 1.—In reply to the Ministers of Great Britain, France, the United States and Japan, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs states that the forces of Kiangsu and Chekiang have been instructed to give full protection to the foreigners residing in the war zone. The ministry has also circulated telegrams to the Chinese legations abroad pointing out the sense of the reply and asking them to inform the foreign governments to this effect.—Shun Pao.

Hankow, September 1.—Tuli Hsiao Yao-nan yesterday issued an order forbidding the exportation of silver dollars. No passenger is allowed to carry more than $500 in silver. As a result of the order, the price of the dollar has slumped. —Shun Pao.

Nanking, September 1.—The Kiangsu Provincial Assembly met today and passed resolutions requesting General Ho Feng-lin to withdraw from Shanghai and Woosung, which is to be declared as neutral territory, to seal up the Arsenal and scrap the Woosung Forts, in order to avert the war. —Shun Pao.

Peking, September 1.—The Chefoo Commissioner of Foreign Affairs reports that all the foreign warships anchored in Chefoo have left for Shanghai.—Sin Wan Pao.

Peking, Sept. 1.—Tuchun Chi Hsieh-yuan of Kiangsu has sent his agent to Peking to present the government with war maps of the coming strife. According to his plan, Chen Tiao yuan and Pei Pao-san will assault Shanghai from Quinsan and Yang Chung-pu and Liang Pang-tu will fight the Chekiang troops at Changhsin from Wusih. The Anhui troops under Wang Fu will bomboard the Chekiang border from Ningkuo and Kwangteh.—Sin Wan Pao.

Peking, September 1.—The Industrial Conference began its session this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Dr. Hawkling Yen, Vice-minister of Agriculture and Commerce presided. Over 80 delegates attended the opening meeting. Dr. W. W. Yen, the Minister, was elected chairman of the conference and Marquis H. W. Li, chairman of the board of directors of the China Merchants' Steam Navigation Co. and Mr. H. Y. Moh, the cotton magnate, were elected vice-chairmen. Five committees were organised: 1. On forestry, Reclamation and Fishery, 2. On Silk and Cotton, 3. On Sugar, Tea and Flour, 4. On Minerals and 5. On Commerce.—Sin Wan Pao.

Nanking, September 1.—Forty third-class passenger-cars were moved across the Yangtsze from the Tsingpu Line to Nanking today. Since the Kiangsu troops have occupied about four-fifth of the length of the Shanghai-Nanking Railway, Tuchun Chi Hsieh-yuan proposes to appoint his own man, Wu Meng-lai, to be director of the railroad.—Sin Wan Pao.

Changchow, September 1.—Chen Tiao-yuan left here last night for Yihsin with his fifth mixed brigade.—Sin Wan Pao.

Hongkong, September 1.—Canton forces have occupied Kweilin of Kwangsi, according to the report of General Teng Yu-wen, in command of the Canton forces. After eight hours of continuous fighting on the 24th of August, the report said, Lu Yung-ting was compelled to retreat in the direction of Hsin-an. A large quantity of arms were seized.—Shanghai Tribune.

Changsha, September 1.—The warden of the prison in Hualtung was murdered as inmates successfully broke open their cells.—Shanghai Tribune.

Peking, September 1.—The Mongolian princes have voiced their opposition against the appointment of General Tang Tsai-li as Resident Commissioner for Outer Mongolia.—Eastern Times.

GERMANY MAKES FIRST PAYMENT FOR NEW LOAN

20,000,000 Gold Marks Paid Into Account Of Reparations Agent

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Sept. 1.—The Minister of Finance, Dr. Luther, stated that Germany today paid into the Reichbank on account of the Agent-General for Reparations 20,000,000 gold marks, being the first instalment for the service of the impending German international loan.

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Sept. 1.—The various stages fixed for the re-establishment of German economic sovereignty in the Ruhr will be calculated from today as the result of a meeting of the Reparations Commission officially registering the promulgation of the German Dawes laws.

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Sept. 1.—A difficult domestic situation will confront the Reichstag on its re-assembly on October 15 for it must immediately decide whether the Cabinet is to lose its present slight Democratic tincture and become distinctly reactionary as the result of the bargain to secure Nationalist support in the adoption of the Dawes Bills, under which the Center Party and the People's Party pledged to help the Nationalists into the Cabinet.

A pretty squabble is now proceeding for, while the Nationalists claim that their action secured the adoption of the Dawes Bills, the Democrats and Socialists point out that the Nationalists voted solidly against the Bills requiring a simple majority while 54 Natonalists, including the leaders, Herren Hergt and Westarp, voted against the Railway Bill and only 48 for it.

If the Nationalists are admitted into the Cabinet their numbers will give them the dominating influence and a claim to the Chancellorship, with consequent power to wreck the plan which they have consistently opposed. Hence the Democrats and Socialists are working for dissolution and an election which they are convinced will enormously increase their strength in the Reichstag.

Heavy Tribute Levied On Upper Yangtsze Steamers

(Independent News Service)

Chungking, Szechuen August 23.—Much talk is abroad these days about the renewal of fighting between factions in Szechuen. Some clashes have already taken place "unofficially". The withdrawal of the Second Army troops (Yang Sen's) from Chungking and the movement of some of the same troops from Wanhsien indicates that something is in the air.

It is also rumored that Lai Hsin Hui's troops are intercepting the Second Army men on their route to Chengtu, but another report says that he will back up Generals Yang and Ho. What will happen of course is a huge question mark for they themselves do not know. It is just a huge poker game with the good cards pretty well scattered. One play might change the whole line-up. In spite of the good rice harvest and other indications of prosperity the merchants are very uneasy. Shipping is coming in for more and more trouble from the military and bandits. Steamers are being heavily fired upon between here and Ichang and farther up river near Hokiang the same thing happens frequently. Looks like the opening act in repeating the drama of last year.

Worse than the firing is the deliberate blackmail policy of the military trying to force a handsome squeeze out of every ship. It is true that some junks are sunk by passing steamers but very few indeed and in such cases the companies have paid damages. The stunt now is to accuse practically every steamer of sinking one or more junks, and the remarkable thing is that in nearly every case "the junk was carrying silver bullion worth many thousands of dollars" and the life loss enormous. Many junks do not keep the required 2 foot free board but load down to a few inches from water. Then they wonder why they get sunk. Most steamers habitually close down their engines to "dead slow" when even passing junks.

WEALTHY COOLIES

In the case of one small passenger boat crossing the river it was claimed that about 20 carrying coolies were drowned (no bodies or other proof could be found) and that every one of those men was carrying from $19 to $55 on his person. Of the ten or more that were saved it was proven, however, that only two had money, one $4.00 and the other $6. When the demands are small it pays to clear up the matter quickly in order to continue the run. In other cases when the ship is held up for $30,000 and $40,000 for one claim—largely false, the companies must refuse. The result then is that the military board the ship and refuse to allow it to sail. This has happened to several ships within a few weeks. Foreign and Chinese companies alike suffer. The Chinese have no recourse. The manager or captain or compradore are one or all thrown into military prison.

Why do the military commit such highway robbery? Only one answer—money. Formerly they could hold up the junks at any or every town and demand squeeze under the name of "protection". Also likin stations took a heavy toll. But steamers do not stop for the likin and seldom can be caught on the way and held up. As these sources of easy income go slipping out of their grasps they look for more money bags to conquer. Paying ransom for persons or for ships is the same thing. One payment breeds a dozen other outrages. Shippers, merchants, consular representatives all have their offices clogged with claims, cases, correspondence. And the people pay the bills. Even the most optimistic person turns indigo under such hopeless corruptions.

TENNIS TOURNEYS ON

Tennis tournaments are now progressing. The foreigners on the Hills are playing off their matches. Some good sets give promise of interesting finals.

Although the Y. M. C. A. tournament has a smaller number of entries, the play is strong and good rallies put life into the games.

Mr. W. E. Drake of L. C. Gillespie and Sons Co. is in Chungking. It is expected that a branch office will be opened here in the near future.

Trade Union Meet Opened; Anglo-Russ Pact Praised

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 1.—The Trade Union Congress opened at the City Hall at Hull today. There were 700 delegates representing 4,500,000 members.

Mr. A. A. Purcell, M. P., presided.

Referring to the position of the German workers, Mr. Purcell said that British trade-unionism ought to insist that if reparations and indemnities had to be paid under the Dawes scheme, they should be paid without injury to the recipients. The burden should fall upon the exploiter and profiteer.

Mr. Purcell commended the Russian Treaty and warned the Congress that possibly opposition to the Treaty might decide the fate of the Government.

Mr. Cook, the secretary of the Miners' Federation, said that he had received a telegram from French miners strongly protesting against the Dawes scheme and its effect on the German workers.

Mr. Marchbank, a railwayman, said that he hoped an opportunity would be given to discuss the Dawes report, which, he said, was designed to benefit international apitalism and to ruin the working-class movement.

Mr. Pollitt, a boilermaker, impassionedly demanded that the rade union movement should control the policy of the Labor Government and that the Congress should emphatically repudiate the threat to introduce the Emergency Powers Act in trade union disputes and denounce the Dawes report, which made war inevitable.

Mr. Robert Smillie, on behalf of the Executive, while not denying the right of the Congress to criticise the Government's policy, defended the latter. He said that the Dawes agreement was in the best interest of the workers of both Britain and Germany.

A portion of the Council's report declaring that it was not the function of the Congress to enlarge upon Labor Government legislation was carried by a large majority in spite of an attack by the Communist section.

The Congress then adjourned.

Kashing Still Quiet Despite All Rumors

(China Press Correspondence)

Kashing, Chekiang, Aug. 31.—Everything at Kashing is quiet, many rumors notwithstanding and to the contrary. Thousands of people have left for Shanghai and other places due to the war scare, but some are now coming back. The officials here are very friendly to foreigners and have promised every protection.

The Christian schools will open a few days late, probably, due to the conditions. But it is hoped that peace may be proclaimed within a few days and that the usual school activities at this time of the year will be unabated. The government schools have decided to open only two weeks late.

The Kashing High Schools during the summer examinations held on August 19 had nearly 400 applications for enrollment. Less than one fourth could be accepted for lack of room. The school will accept a total number this fall of 370.

Drama Department Of A.W.C. To Stage Rollicking Comedy

The Dramatic Department of the American Woman's Club, encouraged and inspired by their success in putting on "Old Lady 31" last fall, and in response to numerous requests for "more" are rehearsing now for "A Full House," which they will show at the Carlton Theater on October 20, 21 and 22.

"A Full House," is a comedy by Fred Jackson which had a tremendous success in New York City where it ran for a year in 1915 at the Frazee theater with a star cast headed by May Vokes and Herbert Corthell.

The A.W.C. Dramatic Department has filled all the parts and the cast, which has just been announced, is an excellent one. It comprises Mesdames S. C. Kingsbury, R. I. Clapp, Scott Emens, John C. Terry, Gardner Crane and Miss Loraine Fleming; also, Messrs. Lew Andrews, Howard Hastings, Philip Giovaninni, F. W. Schlobom, S. C. Kingsbury, Joseph Keegan and Gardner Crane.

This production will be the first of the season which will witness also the revival in Shanghai by the A. W. C. of the famous stage successes "The Thirteenth Chair," in January, and Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" in March.

Mokanshan As Resort Has Most Successful Season

(China Press Correspondent)

Mokanshan, Aug. 30.—Seldom has Mokanshan offered a better season to its visitors than they have enjoyed this summer. There have been well over seven hundred visitors altogether, and servants and other employees will bring the total number to more than 1200. The only cloud on the horison has been drought which has brought partial, and, in some sections, total failure to the rice crop in the plains below. However, this dry weather has been to the liking of visitors on the hill, for there have been few days when the tennis courts were not filled to capacity.

Honors in the tennis tournaments went to the Mokanshan section of the Shanghai American School. Singles went to Maxi Smith who took three straight sets from John Pilley, his schoolmate and partner in doubles, while these two combined easily fought their way to the top in doubles. A feature of the victory for Mr. Smith was the presentation to him of an attractive silver cup, a gift of the members of the Shanghai Customs Club who had been guests on the hill during the summer. They presented the cup to the tennis committee in appreciation of the good fellowship and sportsmanship which characterised the courts in the summer colony.

Not content with taking all honors in tennis, as well as the silver trophy, the American School boys were also victorious in base ball when they lined up against the "World". It was an exciting see-saw game which finally ended in a seven to five score for the school boys. It was a regular country event, for it was the day of the all-community Sunday school picnic, with lemonade, cake, track events and the big ball game. Water sports were held the day before, and it is doubtful if ever in any old swimming hole in the world such an exhibition of good swimming was given. It will not be surprising at all if some day in the future this swimming in cramped quarters will land some of these China-born youngsters in the world Olympics as representatives of their mother countries.

Under the leadership of Mrs. J. H. Black the music committee arranged a series of unusually fine weekly concerts which ran the gamut from the Schubert, Chopin, Grieg, and negro spirituals, to low-browed ditties and comb solos. Mrs. J. M. Wilson has been in charge of the children's hours and the weekly entertainments have solved the entertainment problem for the mothers and given the children much of educational value in their recreation.

The excellent season here is closing under a confusion of advice because of the pending war clouds. Yesterday one of the foreign consulates in Shanghai urged its nationals not to be alarmed, and advised them that they were perfectly safe here on the hill. Today a telegram came from a private citizen of another nationality advising all foreigners to be off the mountain by the seventh. The reason, therefor, is that troops in this district will be removed by that time. There has been no panic here, though there is a suggestion of hurry on the part of residents in the heavy booking for passage down on the early days of next week. The railway is not guaranteeing house boats, but it is taking all applications for booking, and their launch service is going on as usual. The house boat service was suspended for three days. The boats were used for transportation of troops. They seem to be back on the run in full force now, and people are having no difficulty in securing them for passage down.

In spite of the deluge of rumors quite a section of the community is delaying its return home. Many are planning to remain well into September.

Taichow Feeling Effects Of Strife

(China Press Correspondence)

Kiangsu, August 26.—This peaceful spot is beginning to feel the effects of the war talk between Kiangsu and Chekiang. For the past two days many soldiers have landed here from the neighborhood of Tsing Kiang Pu and other points in the northern part of the province. These soldiers on arriving at Taichow have seized house boats and proceeded on their way to Tungchow as some say but their destination is Shanghai so others reports.

The result of the visits of these soldiers has been to frighten the money shops into closing out business. The shops are now refusing either to pay out money or to receive deposits. Capital of course is always the first to get afraid when lawlessness prevails. The reminder of the populace say there is no cause for alarm in this locality, that the war will not be fought here but they are all uneasy as to what might occur after the fight is over. They don't want any backwash of discontented and unpaid soldiers in this section.

One of the missionaries here was quite alarmed Sunday when a runner came with the tale that the soldiers had seized his house boat (which contained about one hundred dollars worth of winter provisions on board) and had made off with it, saying that if a foreigner could eat these things that he guessed a Chinese soldier could too. The brother roused himself hurriedly from an afternoon nap and rushed to the canal only to find that the commanding officer had pronounced the boat to be too small for their use and it was therefore reposing peacefully by the bank. Any day, however, he may lose his boat.

The summer in this locality has been milder than usual and the rains while seasonable have been lighter than ordinary. Crops are favorable and the condition of the people better than for several years past.

The Sarah Walkup Hospital here has received a gift for a deep well from Messrs. W. H. and J. M. Belk of North Carolina—the men who gave the money for the original building of the hospital.

American Drug Co. Holds Exhibit Of 'Prize Canned Cow'

"Klim," the prize canned cow, is in Shanghai and is on exhibition all week in the American Drug Company on Nanking road.

To those Shanghailanders who are unfamiliar with Klim, the powdered whole milk which is doing so much to build up bonny babies in a country where fresh milk that is pure and safe is difficult to obtain, the manufacturers agents have arranged a special introductory exhibition which will tell the Shanghai public of the many uses of this excellent product.

Klim in brief is milk backwards. More than that, it is pure, fresh, liquid, pasteurised skimmed cow's milk reduced to powder by the Merrell-Soule patented process. The cans which one sees on sale in Shanghai have journeyed a long way for the fourteen Klim Plants are located in the best dairying sections of New York and Pennsylvania. The farmers located within a few miles of each Klim Plant deliver their milk after each morning's milking. This insures the freshness of the milk. Merrell-Soule dairy inspectors visit these farms regularly to see that the high sanitary standards of the Company are maintained.

At the door of the klim Plant all milk is inspected as delivered. This is purely a precautionary measure and one taken because of the extreme anxiety that only the best milk be used.

The accepted milk is then pasteurised and subjected to the process by which milk becomes klim. Knowing the process anyone can understand why klim is milk.

The milk is forced through a tiny pinhole so that it comes out in the form of a cloud or mist. This milk spray enters a room through which are blowing strong currents of filtered warm air.

This warm wind immediately absorbs the moisture in the milk and the solid portion falls like snow in drifts of powdered milk.

That is all—it was milk when it entered the room of the winds and it is milk when it settles in the powdery white drifts.

Nothing has been removed but water. When the water is replaced you have milk as you have always known it—milk of milk flavor—milk you can drink and enjoy.

Samples of each lot of Klim are throughly examined for bacteria, flavor, moisture, butterfat and solubility, in a completely equipped "control" laboratory. Every can of Klim must justify the guarantee printed on the inside of the front cover.

Klim, besides being ideal for babies in the Orient, is splendid for growing children who should drink a quart of milk a day. All that is required to make milk of Klim is to add water in the proper proportions and these directions are all given with the article when brought.

It is invaluable in the household, for when restored with water it may be used in the same manner and proportion as liquid milk and is successful in all recipes calling for fresh milk. Klim will clabber when restored if left to stand, just as liquid milk does, and makes wonderful cottage and sour cream cheese.

DEMAND FOR OIL INCREASES AS SUPPLY SHRINKS

Dr. Chrysler Says World's Resources Will Be Gone In Thirteen Years

Can botanists solve the motor fuel problem? This question was asked by Dr. M. A. Chrysler in a lecture last month at the New York Botanical Garden. He said that in thirteen years the world's total supply of oil would be exhausted at the present rate of consumption. Taking as his topic "Harnessing the Sun," Dr. Chrysler, who is professor of botany at Rutgers University, said:

"The ancients had some idea of their dependence on the sun, for they worshiped it. In our irreverent days we treat the sun much as a cart horse, that is, more or less indirectly we harness him and make him do the world's work.

"The world needs matter and energy. Although these two are interdependent, the latter is the one which is in danger of being depleted, because we are constantly degrading energy into less available forms, especially heat. For instance, when coal is used in a locomotive, we change potential energy into kinetic energy, most of which is frittered away as heat.

"Although we are today largely dependent on coal and petroleum, we may enumerate first the natural sources provided by the wind, tides and waterfalls. It will be seen that the energy is in each of these cases derived from the sun. When we put a waterfall in leash we are really harnessing the sun. Considering next the energy used in the human body, this is derived from plants, which in turn absorb it from the sun in the wonderful process of photosynthesis—the process of building up carbohydrates from carbon dioxide and water by green plants as a result of the energy absorbed from the sun by chlorophyll.

"Throughout the ages since chlorophyll made its appearance this has been the chief means by which the earth has absorbed solar energy for present and future needs. It has been established that coal is the modified remains of the forests of the coal period, so that coal is fossil solar energy. It is only a hundred years since we began seriously to exploit these stores, but the supply is strictly limited, though vast.

"Much more limited and disappearing much more rapidly is our supply of petroleum, which like coal is undoubtedly a product of plant life. We are using up the principal of our legacy of oil at an alarming rate. Although gas now costs less than it did a few years ago, this is due to production beyond the power of storage. In thirteen years the supply of oil will be exhausted, and yet the demand grows apace.

"Various ways of solving the problem have been offered, including importing crude oil, 'cracking' the oil, utilising, oil shales and using substitutes such as benzol and alcohol. The botanist has seriously considered the last proposal. Alcohol is generally made from grain, and it has been calculated that the present acreage of corn, if turned into alcohol, would generate as much power as the gasoline now consumed annually. But this grain crop represents 60 percent of all the starch and sugar producing plants. Can we afford to burn up so much foodstuff?

"There are other possible sources of alcohol, such as sawdust, and perhaps we can improve on nature's wasteful method of absorbing solar energy. It may become necessary to devote ourselves largely to the growing of plants which mature quickly. We may also make greater use of the tremendous power of photo-synthesis shown by the vegetation of the tropics. We may, at any rate, rest assured that when we have used up our stores of solar energy we will be dependent on our daily ration which we receive from that body. This threatens a return to one-man power and a collapse of our civilisation. Will our prodigality hasten this day, or will our inventive genius be equal to the task of more effectively harnessing the sun?"

SOVIET RUSSIA IS OVERRATED, SAYS EXPERT

Trade Prospects Are Small And Little Hope Of Improvement Seen

New York, August 1.—Expectations of development of a large trade with Russia are apparently based on misconceptions of the international position of Russia before the World War, according to an article by E. M. Miller, statistician of the National Bank of Commerce in New York in the August issue of "Commerce Monthly."

"The measure of the international commercial importance of a country," writes Mr. Miller, "obviously is its foreign trade In the three years immediately preceding 1914 the total average value of the foreign commerce of Russia, exclusive of Finland, was about $1,400,000,000. This was less than 4 percent of the total international trade of the 70 counries for which data are available in the Statistical Abstract of the United States.

TRADE SMALLER THAN BELGIUM

"Russian foreign commerce was less than nine-tenths that of Belgium, not much larger than that of British India, and one-third the value of that of th United States. It is true that Russian conditions differed from those of the highly industrialised countries of Western Europe, but if comparisons are made with the leading agricultural countries of the world the showing made by Russia is much worse. The pre-war population of Russia in Europe exclusive of Finland, was about 143,000,000. That of the United States at the outbreak of the World War was about 100,000,000.

"The per capita value of the total foreign trade of Russia at that time was $10, while that of the United States was $40. The average value of the total foreign trade of Canada, a country the products of which are much like those of Russia, but with a population of about 7,500,000, was almost three-fourths that of Russia, while the per capita value was nearly $130. Comparisons with Australia. New Zealand and Argentina are equally adverse to Russia.

"Perhaps because before the war Russia was the foremost grain-exporting nation of the world the idea seems to be more or less entertained in the United States that it is a country of wide spaces and few inhabitants, like Canada, Australia and Argentina. While this is true of Siberia, nothing could be further from the truth so far as concerns Russia-in-Europe.

"The population is dense in comparison with the other chief grain-exporting countries of the world, with the exception of British India and the countries of the Danube basin. However, Indian grain exports have declined rapidly in recent years, and it is not certain that the Danube region will again assume its pre-war position as an exporter of grain.

TRUE CONDITION SHOWN

"The true condition of Russia is perhaps unconsciously summarised in an anaylsis of the budget of 1923-24 in the 'Russian Review.' It is there estimated that in 1922-23 the Russian national income amounted to about 50 percent of the pre-war national income, or 50 gold rubles per head, compared with 101 gold rubles prior to 1914. If the peasants and workmen of Russia have gained anything at all as a result of the revolution their gains must be purely psychologic.

"The far future of Russia is a closed book. The country was only moderately important in foreign commerce before the world War, and the prospects of a rapid return to the international position it then held the very slim.

"There are only two methods of paying for imports, namely, by means of exports of goods and services or with credits extended in the belief that eventually they will be repaid. Any rapid increase in exports seems improbable. Neither present Russian conditions nor Russian economic history affords much basis for the extension of credit.

"Some increase, in Russian trade nevertheless will occur, and neighboring countries will profit thereby to a limited extent. Russia will buy in the United States raw materials which she must purchase here, such as cotton and American manufactures especially suitable for Russian use, of which agricultural machinery is typical. American exports of these classes are entering Russia now.

"In so far as the United States needs Russian products, our merchants are finding them in the world's markets, as they did prior to 1914. Any change which might take place in Russian-American relations would not greatly effect the volume of trade between the two countries. It has never been large and there is no basis for any expectation that will be large in the future."

Silk Market

Messrs. William Little & Co., Ltd., state in their silk report dated Shanghai, August 29:

Our last report was dated 22nd inst.

Towards the close of last week to relieve an almost blank week purchases were effected for one account in Steam Filature, New Style, and Tussah Filature. This week business has ruled quiet, but a fair line of Medium Steam Filatures has been brought to book at a small advance on former rates. The commandeering of steam launches in the Country due to the movement of troops has held up a considerable quantity of White Silk that should have been delivered this month. In consequence of the position, dealers will not undertake further business till the present situation clears. Steam Filatures are very firm, both in anticipation of America operating and due to the fact that if hostilities break out and last any length of time it will put Filature beyond the vicinity of Shanghai but business for the meantime. With the tightness of money holders of stock in Tussah Filatures and Mienchews are open to concessions for near Cash.

Cables from Japan report a firm market at former rates.

RUSSIA'S OUTPUT OF OIL IS NEAR PRE-WAR POINT

Head Of Soviet Trust Says Alien Capital Was Not Used In Rebuilding

Reviewing the situation in the Russian oil industry to a representative of The New York Times, A. P. Serebrovsky, President of the Azerbaijan Oil Trust, which operates in the rich Baku fields, said that Russia had been able to go ahead with oil exploitation work without the aid of foreign capital and could get along very well without such aid. Mr. Serebrovsky arrived in America from Russia July 28 to study American producing and refining methods and to arrange for purchases of machinery and other equipment.

The Azerbaijan Oil Trust produces about 75 percent of all Soviet Russia's petroleum output, operation of the Baku fields in the Province of Azerbaijan having been revived in 1920. This is in the Caucasus, where Sinclair obtained a rich territory in return, it was reported, for a $250,000,000 loan which he was to sponsor, but the concession lapsed. The probability of its revival is said to be more remote as the Russians proceed with their own program of development.

According to Mr. Serebrovsky, the output of oil by the State enterprise he heads will this year very nearly reach the pre-war average output of 50,000,000 barrels. Production in the Baku territory is now at the rate of about 48,000,000 barrels, he said, and new wells are being brought in constantly.

Inhabitants of the region are witnessing, he said, the greatest activity in the oil fields there in thirty years. A total of 54,000 workers are employed there, and most of these workers are housed at or near Baku, on the Caspian Sea, and being transported to and from the oil fields by an electric interurban railway. The housing development is about twenty to twenty-five miles from the oil fields now being exploited.

In a part of the territory Sinclair would have obtained if the agreement of last year had not lapsed gushers have been brought in, one of which, among others, gave up 600,000 barrels of crude oil in five days, Serebrovsky said. Another well has been producing 16,000 barrels a day for the last three months, while the output of another gusher is 32,000 barrels a day. Serebrovsky declared the fields being exploited by Soviet Russia were probably the richest in the world. Not more than 10 percent of the whole Baku area had been exploited to date, he said. The proposed Baku concession to Sinclair, he added, meant only new or undeveloped fields.

Asked if it were still possible for Sinclair or other foreign oil interests to obtain concessions in this territory, Mr. Serebrevsky said it was, but that the need for making these concessions was rapidly disappearing as the process of Russian economic and industrial restoration goes on.

He said he did not know if the Standard Oil interests were seeking concessions in Russia, but that the Standard Oil and related interests were buyers of oil produced by the Soviet trust. Mr. Serebrovsky was careful to explain, during the interview, that the matter of concessions was in the hands of a special Soviet Government committee with which he had no connection.

As to the cabled report, published Saturday in The New York Times, that the Sakhalin concession to Sinclair had become the subject of a great world oil drama in which the protagonists were the Governments of Japan and Russia and the Sinclair Corporation, Mr. Serebrovsky said Japan was not seeking to control the Sakhalin field and Russia had nothing to fear in this connection. Russia insists on the evacuation of the northern or Russian half of Sakhalin Island, and according to the cabled report the Japanese have agreed to this in principle while requesting priority of oil exploration rights in that territory. Mr. Serebrovsky said he did not believe Japan was making such a demand. This right of priority was ceded to Sinclair in 1922.

While Mr. Serebrovsky was in London on his way to America a contract was closed with "an important foreign concern" for the export of large quantities of fuel oil for the English consumers. Expansion of the export demand, now representing about 20 percent in actual shipments of the Baku output, is necessitating, he said, an increase in the Soviet oil fleet.

What Foreigners Think Of The Chekiang—Kiangsu War

HERE in Shanghai the general impression among foreigners is that if the military factions in Kiangsu and Chekiang Provinces want to fight, and in spite of the fact that a serious war in this part of China would be most disastrous, perhaps, after all, it would be better if they had their fight and got it over with. Every few months we have had war rumors and war flurries and business has been disrupted. Therefore, think many foreigners, if a real cause for war exists here—and certainly it must exist, otherwise we would not have the frequent scares—perhaps it would be better to have the war and settle the question. There are, of course, many persons who think most seriously that an effort should be made by foreigners to mediate, if possible, and prevent an outbreak, but after considerable discussion in the various foreign chambers of commerce it was decided that neutrality is the best policy and that no move should be made to interfere in the purely domestic question.

The impressions of foreigners elsewhere in the Far East on the war situation are most varied, if we are to believe the editorial expressions in the various newspapers. The Japan Advertiser, American newspaper published in Tokio, apparently does not expect actual fighting to break out, and if it does, no particular change in the situation is likely to result. "The most usual method of warfare in China," says the editor of the Advertiser, "is to count the noses of the soldiers on either side and the dollars in each leader's treasury. Then there is no war. The man with the fewest units to handle rifles and the fewest dollars for the purchase of ammunition, food and allegiance quietly retires and the war is ended, oftimes before it actually has begun. Tuchun Lu and his opponents may do this; may weigh the chances of success or failure and be willing to accept their own judgment without resort to arms. . . . But if war actually does come, there may be a change of overlords and dictators in the Republic of China, but there will be no appreciable change, either for the better or for the worse, for the Chinese people."

Two papers, the North China Daily Mail and the Peking and Tientsin Times, call attention to the fact that while two rival military governors in the Yangtsze Valley are squandering millions of dollars in war preparations and causing many more millions of losses to innocent people, the Peking Government, in cooperation with the various charitable organisations, is issuing a call for ten million dollars for famine relief purposes. Says the Mail: "Yet it seems a monstrous thing when 60,000 square miles of Chihli Province are under water and other extensive districts are suffering, when appeals are being made to humanity and surcharges are being added to Government tariffs—it seems a monstrous thing that self-willed militarists should choose this moment for adding to China's sorrows by plunging again into an armed conflict."

The Peking and Tientsin Times, in referring to this same point, says: "And now let us turn aside for a moment and consider the state of China without reference to the Kiangsu-Chekiang conflict. It has been a bad summer. Disastrous floods have been experienced in Chihli, Fukien, Hunan, Hupeh, Kwangsi, and Kwangtung. Canton, once one of the most prosperous of Chinese cities, has well-nigh been ruined by the antics of Dr. Sun and his satellites. Kwangsi is in a state of perpetual disorder. Only in Manchuria, in Chekiang, and in Shansi, has there been any semblance of stable and efficient government. In the aggregate, some millions of Chinese would have to be succored in the coming winter, if they are to escape death by starvation. . . . Appeals will soon be made to Europe and America for charitable relief. China, we shall be told, is incapable of raising the funds necessary to save her starving millions. Yet the Chihli militarists have light-heartedly decided, in utter disregard of the sufferings, present and future, of their fellow-countrymen, to embark on another war—a war which will inflict untold suffering upon thousands of innocent victims, and absorb millions of dollars which might otherwise be applied to relief work, or constructive ends.

Some of the papers refer to the urgent necessity of neutralising the Shanghai area. Says the Far Eastern Times of Peking; "The war, now in its incipiency, may be short or it may be long, but in either case, unless the Woosung-Shanghai-Sungkiang zone be neutralised, we are likely to see practically the whole of the trade of Shanghai, which means fifty per cent. of the foreign trade of the country, held up, with disastrous consequences to customs revenues, the foreign interest in which, should the loan services be suspended, is sufficiently great to lead to joint foreign action that would seriously impair not only the dignity of the Chinese Government, but its control, already somewhat tenuous, over its own finances. Indeed, the whole China issue, in respect of relations to the foreign Powers, might well be raised in a form repugnant to the legitimate aspirations of this country, which would, however, be powerless to affect any decisions reached by the creditor Powers. Neutralisation is necessary for the zone adjacent to the war area; for the war itself, localisation is necessary, unless the war is to be on a scale that will threaten the very existence of the Republic itself. In another editorial, the same paper, the Far Eastern Times of Peking, also calls attention to the futility of the present methods which are being adopted to unite China by force. "The Kiangsu-Chekiang war, if it comes, will be but part of the general attempt that martial rule is making to secure unification by force, and the weak point of the process of unification by force is that the main result aimed at, a stable union, round a recognised central authority, will never be achieved, as the military generals thru whose agency the 'unification' is attempted will seize, for the support of their armies of unification, the very revenues that should go to the general government, as the case of Szechwan, proves. The net result is that the more you 'unify' the less you contribute to the foundation of a stable government; in short, unification by force simply means a military license, harmful to the nation and deliberately delaying every form of progress except that of the military steam-roller.

The North China Standard, Japanese paper printed in the English language in Peking, believes that war is inevitable. "Warfare does not start with the first shot. All kinds of preparations usually go before, and when troops are being rushed ahead, as they are being moved at present, it is only a matter of time until the bullets begin to fly. But while the outcome of the impending struggle is still in the laps of the gods, it behooves us to spare a thought or two for those who are the real victims of this war, the poor harmless people of China. They who are trodden under foot by a few worthless, rascally militarists, are the sufferers. Inarticulate as they are, they cannot make themselves heard, but have to bear their burden in silence, and whatever the outcome, they will reap no benefits but only misery and death."

The Central China Post, the British paper in Hankow, under the heading of "The Time That Kings Go Forth to Battle," says:—"In these days, since the Revolution, the country has been filled with kings, big ones and little ones, who have nothing to do but fight. . . . In the depth of winter they keep quiet, but as soon as the weather begins to warm up, the fighting spirit takes possession of them, and like the Minstrel Boy, they are off to the wars again. In the height of summer, during the period of the great heat, they also take a rest, but only until the cool weather comes, and then they are up and at it afresh. . . . Altogether, as long as the present conditions last, the time that kings go forth to battle, is bound to be duly observed in China, and the only way this can be altered is by getting rid of the kings. One supreme central government, which can control all, no matter by what name it may be called, is the only cure."

THE CHIEN SOCIETY OF CHINA

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir.—The "Chien" Society of China, as the name indicates, has the sole purpose of creating a New China on the "constructive" side, not the destructive. This new society was organised mainly by a group of Chinese students in Seattle, Washington, U. S. A., on the 10th of last October, 1923, whose duty it is, as we vehemently believe it ought to be, to cultivate, stabilise and maintain that union of spirit which has so long and so happily subsisted between China and the United States of America, and which we hope to be the seed of the world peace.

It is in response to this important inspiration that we, a group of Chinese students in Shanghai have found the Shanghai Branch for carrying out our ideas into effect. A meeting was held on August 29 in the Far Eastern Commercial College and the following gentlemen were elected as officers of the Shanghai Branch for 1924-1925:

President.—Mr. Tuan Moh-kei, of the Soochow Law School.

Chinese Secretary.—Mr. Wen Tsoong-sing, of the Far Eastern Commercial College.

English Secretary.—Mr. Sung Hyau-kwaung, of the St. John's University.

Treasurer.—Mr. Chang Tin-haw, of the Fuh Tan University.

Manager.—Mr. Zung Zung-ying, of the Fuh Tan University.

I beg to inform the public that, hereafter, any matter concerning the Chien Society of China, especially that which deals with the future "Chinese Art and Industrial Exhibition" which will take place on next January, 1925, in the New Olympic Hotel of Seattle, may be communicated with the Shanghai Branch, which has its office at present in the Far Eastern Commercial College, Weihaiwei Road, Shanghai.

I sincerely request you to publish this account in your correspondence column with the hope that the public may be thus acquainted with our Society and that all constructive and good advice may be henceforth received.

Sung Hyan Kwang.
(English Secretary of Shanghai Branch)

EXCERPTS FROM GREAT WRITERS

By Mathy

THE SPIRITUAL STEAM-ROLLER

The secret of prophecy is to find what is right, and prophesy that.

It is very simple. What is wrong will go down

The cosmic spiritual laws are just as accurate, just as sure-footed, as the laws of gravitation and chemical reaction.

Any institution that is founded on non-facts, any government that is maintained on violation of plain human rights, any system, any propaganda, that depends upon cheating, lying, or injustice, is certain at length to fail.

In the little affairs of a day it seems sometimes as if the wicked prosper. The gambler is flush, the lecher flourishes, the swindler gets away with his swag, and the pirate, the assassin, and the robber feast on their booty. But when this sort of thing is stretched out over a considerable space of time or territory, so that the cosmic laws, which move slowly, have a chance, it is sure to break down.

What we call righteousness and justice is just as much a part of nature as the physical laws. It is just as true and certain that lying brings disgrace, robbery cannot be made a permanent basis of business, uncleanness ends in shame, tyranny brings revolution, and cruelty eventuates in counter-cruelty and insecurity, as that water runs down hill and flame mounts upward.

It is the glory of the Hebrew that he first saw and made clear to the world these spiritual verities. His Bible is a book of spiritual chemistry and physics.

When he said that "the ungodly shall not stand," "the covenant with hell shall be disannulled," "though hand join in hand the wicked shall not go unpunished," and "be not deceived, God is not mocked, for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap," he was not indulging in sentiment, but he had a real vision of cosmic law.

It was the supreme genius of Jesus that He saw the majestic certainly and fatefulness of this law, and recommended to His followers that they let it alone, and trust in it.

"Vengeance is mine, I will avenge, saith the Lord." Time, evolution, destiny, nature, God—all these flow onward as irresistible tides.

Prehistory Growing Clearer

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

More than ten years ago, when "prehistory" was seldom mentioned or thought of outside the meetings of archaeolgists and anthropologists, I undertook of give in one of this series of articles a popular outline of the subject as it had been developed up to that time.

But in these days more progress in knowledge is achieved in ten or twenty years than our forefathers made in a hundred—nay, in a thousand!

Prehistory has sprung to the front with amazing steps, and today, in place of the fragmentary discoveries that the general public paid slight attention to in 1912, and the hesitating suggestions that those discoveries then gave rise to concerning the earliest known representatives of our race on the earth, we have a great historico-scientific romance based upon irrefragable facts, which places the lives of the men and women of twenty-five, and it may be of fifty or more, thousand years ago, as vividly before us as if the muse of history had dwelt with them, as she dwelt with Greeks, Egyptians and Romans, and handed down their story. We see them certainly as plainly as we see the Germans of a couple of thousand years ago in the pages of Tacitus.

Just now as I write there appears on the book counters in France a short work by Professor Capitan, of the College de France, and Conservator Peyrony, of the Museum of Les Eyzies (Les Eyzies has been called the capital of pre-history, so abundant and so wonderful are the prehistoric remains surrounding it), and this little book should suffice to shut the mouths of well-meaning but essentially ignorant persons who persist in affirming that man is not a product of evolution.

Excepting the personality and the names of its leaders we now know the story of the upward march of primitive mankind from the Acheuleans and the Mousterians to the Aurignacians and the Magdaleneans, as surely as we know that of the progress of the later civilisations familiar to history and legend. We can go back, with facts ever at our side to guide us, from the almost complete manhood of the Cro-Magnon of the Vezere Valley, painting his cavern walls with pictures of the strange animals of his time, to the ape-like type of the primitive Chellean, whose dawning intellect inspired no product of his hands superior to the rough stone "coups de poing," with which he smashed the skulls of his enemies and broke the bones of his prey.

And we read also, not so clearly, yet with sufficient certainty, the story of the human imagination. Its tyranny is manifested by practices that evidently had a superstitious basis; its triumph by the mastery which, during the Aurignacian stage of culture, was achieved in the art of design, the intellectual representation of nature by painting and sculpture. The highest type of the Aurignacian—the Cro-Magnon, whose name everybody has read during the past few years—had the saving grace of humor. He occasionally drew caricatures both of himself and of the animals that dwelt with him in that early land which the Lord God had given to these preadamites.

One of the most thrillingly interesting places that I have ever visited on the earth is Les Eyzies and the valley of the River Vezere, together with that of its small tributary, the Benue. For as long, it may be, as 50,000 years, successive races, Acheulean, Mousterian, Aurignacian, Solutrean, Magdelenean, dwelt there—ten times as long as written history, and [illegible] before written history was begun!

Now there is a growing museum at the place where the first skeletons of the Cro-Magnons were found. Conservator Peyrony has said of this:

"We thought that since, in this place, fifteen thousand, twenty thousand, thirty thousand years ago, and perhaps still earlier there existed a great center, a capital, in the same sense as that of Nineveh, Baylon, Thebes, Athens and Rome for more recent civilisations, that it ought to be resuscitated by the many cultures which followed one another on this spot."

Once Overs

BY J. J. MUNDY

How much control have you over yourself?

Do you get wrought up every time an automobile driver does something foolish, causing you to make a quick and strenuous effort to avoid an accident

If something in your home has been moved from its accustomed place do you fly into a rage, when you cannot find it at once?

If you have to wait a few minutes longer than you anticipated for some one to get ready to go out with you, do you become irritable?

It is foolish to go through life allowing yourself to be annoyed by trifles.

Does any good come to you, ever from these outbursts of temper?

Such tyranical outbursts become more frequent as time goes on.

There is such a thing as a "righteous indignation" and there are occasions when to remain placid would be as foolish as to have "temper fits".

But your angry paroxysms are not occasioned by anything like "righteous indignation"—you simply let an evil temper get the better of you.

Better stop it before it is too late.

You cannot keep friendship, and at the same time fly "off the handle" every time you are displeased.

The Fans of the Present Mode Take Inspiration From Many Lands In Many Ages

Fans seem to be either enormously large or very small, decidedly elaborate or most extremely simple. There are tiny fans small enough to be tucked in a small evening bag and quite suggestive of the Directoire and Empire periods in France, when small folding fans seemed to be in the hands of every woman who pretended to be—or was—in fashion.

This summer there has been a large demand at shops where smart women buy such accessories for folding fans small enough to be tucked into little bags, and charming have been the little fans offered for sale. These small fans have been spoken of as matinee fans, the idea doubtless being that for formal evening use at the theater one could carry one of the large ostrich fans, whereas for afternoon performances the smaller, less conspicuous fans were chosen.

Undoubtedly France taught England the use of the fan, and the fashion of fans went to France from Italy. India and Persia and Egypt, Rome and Greece have all contributed to the lore of fanmaking. But the little folding fan that was used so generally in the eighteenth century in France and still is used here at the present time was the product of Japanese ingenuity.

Another type of folding fan has been much admired recently. The sketch show one of these with mother of pearl frame, covering of lace and trimming of ostrich.

The typical Spanish fan is of the Japanese type of folding fan—only it is much larger than the fan usually made or carried in Japan. While the French coquette demanded a fan of ivory, costly lace with decorations painted by the hands of a clever artist—such artists as Watteau and Boucher deigning to make the decorations from which fans were painted—the Spanish charmer on the other hand, often made as good use of a simple large fan of black satin. The second fan in the sketch is distinctly Spanish in feeling. It is of rather substantial black chiffon edged with black silk fringe and painted with bright colored flowers.

Large black chiffon fan edged with black silk fringe and painted with bright colored flowers. Below, small folding fan of mother-of-pearl, lace and ostrich.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

BY MARY MARSHALL

HAGGIS

This has been often called the national dish of Scotland, and you have only to read Burns' "To a Haggis," to realise how dear this dish is—or was—to the heart of a true Scot.

Like many a national dish it is quite economical and doubtless owes much of its widespread popularity to the fact that it was well within the reach of almost every one. A bag may be used as the container in which the haggis is boiled but true haggis is boiled in a well-cleaned sheep's stomach, and it is made from a mixture of the minced heart, liver and other parts of a sheep mixed with onion, seasoning, suet and, of course, oatmeal. It is then boiled two or three hours.

WORTH'S UNDERARM BAG

Worth has designed an interesting underarm bag, copies of which may be had in the American shops. It is of watered black silk, with a band of colored silk around the middle.

BIRDS' NESTS

An appetizing sausage dish of rather more elaborate character is the following—sometimes called birds' nests. For this we shall require half a pound of sausage meat and fixe eggs. Boil four of the eggs for fifteen minutes, then put into cold water, and when cool enough remove the shells.

Now put on a frying pan with plenty of fat. While it is heating, divide the sausage meat into four portions, and cover each of the eggs with a portion. Mould them into oblongs with flat ends. Beat up the remaining egg on a large plate, and on another plate put some browned bread-crumbs. Cover the rolls first with the egg, and after with the crumbs, and then fry in deep fat to a golden brown.

The fat should be sufficient to cover the rolls. Lift them out on to paper to drain, and then, with a very sharp knife, cut each one in half. Serve them on a dish of watercress or green vegetable in season.

More Truth Than Poetry

ADAM
Let us cease to bandy
Words that drip with hate;
Anger is too handy,
Reason comes too late;
Rashly we have spoken
Things we never meant;
Ere our ties are broken
Let us both repent.

EVE
Why say "we," when truly
It was you alone?
I have not unduly
Made my feelings known.
Now your tone is mournful,
But I can't forget;
Bitterly your scornful
Words are cutting yet.

ADAM
Have you not accused me,
Showing small regard?
Words you've spoken bruised me,
You have struck me hard.
Speech is often fuel
For a deadly flame;
Silence is a jewel
By another name.

EVE
Let us say no more, dear,
Let love be our guide,
As it was before, dear,
All else put aside;
Leave regret behind you,
Practice to be mute;
Daily I'll remind you
That you've been a brute.

No Corn Too Tough for "Gets-It"

It's just wonderful how "Gets-It" ends corns and callouses. Put a few drops of "Gets-It" on a hurting corn and Presto! The pain stops at once, forever. Soon the corn loosens from the true flesh and you just lift the corn off with the fingers root and all complete. Money back guarantee. Costs but a trifle—everywhere. E. Medical men strongly advise wives and mothers not to forego nourishing midday meals in the absence of their husbands. It is to this foolish habit that many of the diseases so common among women may be attributed. Keep yourself nourished by taking Bovril with the midday meal.

Overloaded Car Charge Against Tramway Comp'y

Case In British Police Court Here Dismissed By Magistrate

In the British Police Court here yesterday the local street-car company, the Shanghai Electric Construction Co., Ltd., was summoned before Magistrate G. W. King on the charge of carrying more passengers on a street-car than were authorised. Mr. H. L. Ward appeared for the defendant company.

Sub-Inspector Mills, on the stand, stated that on 11.05 a.m. on August 21 he had seen tram B48, travelling east on Nanking Road, at the corner of Szechuen Road, with a load of passengers much in excess of its authorised capacity. He had counted two passengers—foreigners—on the front platform, 74 passengers in the first-class compartment, 21 in the third-class compartment, and 7 on the rear platform, a total of 77, twenty in excess of the number authorised.

Cross-examined by Mr. Ward, the Inspector said he did not get on the car, but looked through the window when the car stopped, then went around to the other side to verify his first count. No one got in or out while he was counting. He had seen no inspector on the front platform, and had not taken the number of either the conductor or the motorman. Many people got off at Szechuen Road.

Asked about details of his counting, he said he had counted before the gate was opened. He had waited until the car came abreast of him and did his counting before it stopped. It had taken a couple of minutes to do the counting. The car had traveled about two feet beyond where he had been standing.

The Magistrate asked who authorised the figures showing the capacity of the car, and it was explained that this was done by the Commissioner of Police on the basis of information received from the street-car company. Mr. Ward submitted a letter from the Commissioner showing the authorised figures.

Mr. Ward said that the question was whether the car was carrying 77 persons or not. They must be satisfied that the police inspector took down the number correctly. He had counted them in the time it took the car to go two feet, with people getting up and moving along and going out. By the time the tram stopped he had got around to other side and was checking the number.

The street-car company, Mr. Ward continued, as it so happened had an inspector on this very tram at the time. He had not seen the police inspector and the latter had not seen him. The street-car inspector, Mr. McKinnon, was put on the stand.

Inspector McKinnon testified to having gotten on car B48. He had first gotten on the trailer, but changed to the main car at Shanse Road. He had permitted two passengers to get on, as there was ample room. Not more than 57 persons were in the car. The car was of "A" type, permitting 20 people seated and 10 standing in the first class compartment. There were in fact not more than this number there. Witness had not seen the police inspector counting the passengers. Had he seen him he would have mentioned it in his report. He himself could not tell the exact number of passengers on the car.

Mr. Ward offered to call further witnesses if necessary, the Chinese motorman and conductor on the tram, and a Chinese ticket inspector also on the car at the time, being in Court. The Magistrate did not require them, however.

The Court, in summing up, said that though the police inspector had undoubtedly counted under great difficulties, his figures might be accepted as approximately correct were it not for the direct evidence of a tramway inspector who had boarded the same car, and who said definitely that it was not overcrowded. There must be some mistake, especially as the police inspector, as was shown by his notebook, had made some notes and afterwards added others. The Court dismissed the case.

The O.I.C. has grown faster than any other local optician.

We were first to formulate and publish a Standard Guarantee of both our Examination and Glasses.

We were first to inaugurate a standard "one price" system on all frames—with prices marked in plain figures.

We were first to offer Genuine Sir Wm. Crookes' Toric Lenses ground to any prescription for $5.00 per pair, when others charge from $15 to $25.00. We were first to institut a repair Service whereby we duplicate and replace any broken lense for $1.00—regardless of the prescription in genuine Toric, Flat, White or Crookes Glass.

We were first to inaugurate "No charge for Small Repairs"—"Lense Duplicated while you wait"—"Cases and Antiseptic Cleaners Free"—"No charge for adjustments—Springs or Screws." COSSACK OFFICER CAUGHT IN ARMED ROBBERY HERE

Colonel Ooshakoff, Noted "White" Leader, Jailed On Serious Charge

A Russian "White" officers, Col. Ooshakoff, was arrested while engaged in a highway robbery on Haining Road late Monday night, his intended victim being a tailor from whom he demanded money at the point of a revolver, according to the charge lodged by the police against the man, who is now in jail on remand.

C. P. C. 1598, on duty on Haining Road Monday night, at about 11:15 p.m. saw two men struggling together. Running up, he saw a Chinese and a foreigner grappling. The Chinese had hold of the foreigner's wrist, in which was an ugly-looking revolver. The policeman seized the foreigner's arm and took the weapon away from him. It was found to be a seven-chambered pistol, fully loaded.

Sikh Police Constable 146 ran up immediately afterward, and the two policeman dragged the man to the police station, struggling and fighting. There he was found to be Vladimir Ooshakoff, a Cossack colonel, a prominent figure among the Russian "Whites."

Ooshakoff's intended victim was a Cantonese tailor, Ho Ming-hwe, who was getting out of a ricsha when the Cossack came up to him and demanded money. He called for help, and Ooshakoff assaulted him, then whipped out a revolver. Ho grappled with him, calling for assistance, and the police ran up.

The Cossack was arraigned in the Mixed Court yesterday before Mr. Bucknell, American Assessor, and Magistrate Li. Mr. Lemeire appeared for the defense, and said there must be some mistake, as the accused was one of the most respected men in the Russian community. D. S. I. Yorke then outlined the armed highway robbery charge against the respected Cossack. The two police officers who had captured and arrested the man also gave evidence.

Upon application of Mr. Lemeire, the case was remanded.

Ooshakoff came to Shanghai with a Russian vessel, the "Strelok", some time ago, which it is understood he had commandeered. He disposed of the ship here, and the crew demanded a share in the spoils, finally bringing the matter into court. He is doing no work here, and is down on the Court records as an unemployed Russian. It is understood that the defense will be that at the time of the attempted highway robbery he was intoxicated.

And Now It May Be Told

objectives: First, the Arsenal, where, it was the unanimous opinion of the assembled both of us, that difficulty should be experienced in Fording the trenches, flivvering over the breastworks and lizzying across the ramparts. Also, there was the over-present possibility that some well-placed shot from the anti-aircraft battery might find its target in a motor car which never had even the slightest ambition to fly. Secondly, we wanted to see Loonghwa, yamen of General Ho Feng-lin, headquarters of the general staff for the Shanghai front, and, in more peaceful periods, center of the peach-blossom industry of China.

And so we went to the Arsenal. Credentials we had none, but that just made the problem a bit more intricate.

"They'll surely stop us at the tramway terminus," opined Carl as we rolled down the Chinese Bund. "That's the beginning of the fortified area."

But they didn't. Perhaps the rain was a bit too heavy and the soldiery were saving their nice, new umbrellas for the conflict that is to come. There were, in truth, sentries, who looked on apathetically from under the cover of modish rain bonnets as we made the turn to the Arsenal, but not even a challenge. Disappointing, what?

RAIN SOME MORE

Through a road fairly well littered with wheelbarrows carrying the effects of "refugees," the Ford rolled merrily along. More sentries peaked out of their roadside boxes to see if there was any prospect of the rain ever letting up. Seeing that there was none, they retired indolently within. At the Arsenal, itself, the prospect was so entirely devoid of interest that not even the indefatigable Carl could muster sufficient energy to leave the motor car in search of excitement.

But at Loonghwa—there, it was different. So different from its ordinary aspect of soldiery falling all over each other that the encampament looked almost deserted. The first gleam of hope came with the actual arrival at the pagoda. En route the expeditionary party of two had formulated the neat strategem of climbing to the topmost of its six or seven stories and surveying the war zone from that exceptional vantage point. But the pagoda was closed. Though the sign which invites foreign and Chinese visitors to please give "more contributions" still occupied its customary place, a padlock was firmly fixed across the iron gates at the entrance.

Let it be stated here, however, that the pagoda has not gone out of business. Its sightseeing privileges have only been taken over by the military, if we are to believe a Chinese informant, who, at the first sign of our interest in the venerable edifice, rushed up to tell us that the troops now hold the keys, but that for the slight emolument of one dollar Mexican for one piece man they would be glad to oblige and throw wide the gates. Not wishing to appear partisan by giving financial aid to the combatants, we declined and made our way to the railway station.

Here was military activity, indeed. All of twelve privates, and one supposed captain lounged about the station, some of them with full equipment. They were not going, neither were they coming, but they were there, nevertheless, and what better evidence of extensive troops movement can be sought than their actual presence in a railway station?

So it was that the great secret came out. Language barriers made an actual interview with the troops impossible. The station agent, however, speaks English after a fashion, and on being duly pressed, he asserted in quite positive and emphatic fashion that hostilities would be in full swing by no later than noon today. Beyond which, deponent said nothing.
